Naval Base Injected In Negotiations

Red Cross Plan Dropped; Mikoyan Supports Castro

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union and Cuba Tuesday countered U.S. demands with new proposals that reportedly injected the Guantanamo naval base into U.S.-Soviet negotiations on the Cuban crisis.

The formula stemmed apparently from the talks Soviet first Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan has been holding with Prime Minister Fidel Castro in Havana.

The proposals were offered as word came from Geneva that the International Committee of the Red Cross had abandoned plans to arrange inspection of Cuba-bound shipping.

Blockade Continues

One immediate result seen here was continuance of the U.S. naval blockade of Cuba for an undetermined period.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov and Cuban Ambassador Carlos Lechuga laid the new proposals before Acting Secretary-General U Thant in a private meeting of an hour and 15 minutes.

Later Kuznetsov called on U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson at the U.S. mission to the United Nations. Kuznetsov requested the meeting in order to present the proposals to Stevenson, special adviser John J. McCloy, and U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost.

The three U.S. representatives conferred Monday in Washington with President Kennedy. The United States was reported holding firm to its demands that the Soviet Union pull its jet bombers out of Cuba and abide by promises to permit verification of the dismantling of Soviet missile bases.

Certain Rejection

Reliable sources said there was nothing especially new in the Soviet-Cuban formula and it seemed certain the United States would reject it.

The informants described the proposals as based on the five demands made earlier by Castro. These included withdrawal of the United States from Guantanamo, and end to the U.S. arms blockade, and adoption of measures by the United States to prevent hostile activity against Cuba by exile groups.

Mikoyan, who has been in Havana for nearly two weeks, was quoted as expressing support for the demands in a speech in the Cuban capital Monday night.

Authoritative sources said in Geneva that the International Committee of the Red Cross had decided not to take part in the inspection of Cuba-bound ships because two of its basic conditions were not met: Red Cross intervention was no longer vitally necessary for maintenance of world peace; Castro failed to give unconditional approval to the plan.

Guam Begins Clean-Up Task After Storm

Loss Far Exceeds Damage By WWII; Hundreds Injured

AGANA, Guam (AP) — Guam began Tuesday the long, tragic job of clearing the debris left by Typhoon Karen, which killed six and injured hundreds, and damaged virtually every structure on this American defense stronghold.

Acting Gov. Manuel Guerrero described the four-hour blow as the worst disaster in the island's history. Damage far exceeded the destruction caused by assault bombardment and fighting in World War II, when the capital city of Agana was shot to pieces.

Thousands of people are homeless and are being quartered, 48 hours after the disaster, in churches, schools and other surviving buildings.

Seventeen postwar years of building up the island's economy and installations went down the drain in a matter of hours, beaten into wreckage by winds that reached a force estimated between 170 and 195 miles an hour.

In pre-World War II days, except for the city of Agana and Navy installations at Apra harbor the island's other towns were simple native villages. Since then the United States has spent millions on buildings all over the island.

The six persons killed were island residents. There were no deaths among American military personnel. The only serious injury among Air Force or Navy people was a broken arm suffered by a woman trying to shield a child from flying glass.

Agana again was reduced to rubble, with its relatively new frame buildings splintered and strewn widely.

Waves up to 10 feet high followed the typhoon. They drove boats ashore and washed debris far inland. All power and water facilities were knocked out. Emergency crews have been working around the clock trying to restore some electric service and water pumping stations.

Guerrero estimated it would take four months to complete repairs of damage to the utilities.

The massive typhoon hit Guam Sunday night with such violence that no official measure of the wind's intensity was made possible.

Reinforced concrete houses at Anderson Air Force Base, on the extreme northern tip of the island, were damaged severely.

Society Matron Is Strangled

Daughter, 14, Abducted, Raped

WESTPORT, Conn. (UPI) — The 14-year-old daughter of a New York fashion designer, her tears spilling on a hospital pillow, told police Tuesday of a 12-hour ride of horror with a Negro handyman who strangled her mother and kidnaped and raped her in his automobile.

The girl, dressed in night clothes and her hands bound behind her back, managed to escape from the killer's car Monday night. She had been held captive for nearly 12 hours.

The designer, Pierre Sillan, found the body of his wife, Isabel, in an upstairs bedroom of their fashionable three-story home when he returned home Monday night. The nightgown-clad, 50-year-old woman had been strangled with a cord.

An hour and a half later, Gail, sobbing and hysterical, stumbled up to the home of Mrs. Walter Burgo in South Norwalk, about four miles south of this southwestern Connecticut suburban community.

"She said she had been kidnaped and abused by a colored man who used to work around the area," Mrs. Burgo said. "She did not say what his name was. She was in a bad state . . . near tears . . . wearing a cotton night dress and cloth slippers with a kimona around her shoulders.

"Her hands were still tied behind her back. I untied them and called police."

Gail was in such a state of shock that police were unable to question her thoroughly until Tuesday. Even so, it was difficult for the chestnut-haired girl to recall the details police needed.

Police said the girl described the killer as about 30 years old, six feet tall, medium build and with a dark brown complexion.

She lay in a hospital bed, a doctor, a detective and a police artist by her side, trying to help make a composite picture of the killer.

"She's the bravest girl you ever saw," a nurse said. "She has to choke back the tears. She must have seen that man kill her mother."

Police Capt. Louis Rosenau ordered a 24-hour guard on the girl, the only witness. Of the slayer, the captain said:

"This guy is a kook. I am convinced that he would try to kill her if he got a chance."

Extensive Plan Announced For Full Military Training

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—India announced plans Tuesday for expansion of its armed forces in the undeclared war against Red China, with military training for every able-bodied man.

Home guard units will be set up in all districts bordering Tibet, the base of the Communist Chinese Himalayan offensive, and defenses will be organized on a nationwide basis, Home Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri told Parliament.

Shastri said Prime Minister Nehru's government decided to coordinate the project.

Communist China, he said, "has flooded the entire border of India with soldiers." The Red Chinese, like the Indians, have reinforced their lines in the lull that followed a late October push which won the Red Chinese 2,000 square miles of territory. Peiping at that time was estimated to have up to 50,000 troops in action.

The home minister said the enemy was dangerous and warned India's people against any "complacency or relaxation."

With snow limiting military activity on parts of the mountain front, a government spokesman reported Indian patrols were uneventful.

The nation prepared to celebrate Nehru's 73rd birthday Wednesday. Donations of gold poured in to give him his weight in that precious metal for the war effort.

Post Office Blasts Dreams Of Collectors

WASHINGTON (AP)—For days a few American collectors have been gazing into their mixed-up stamps and dreaming of cash. Tuesday the Post Office Department blasted the dream.

In a surprise announcement, the department said it would flood the market with misprinted Dag Hammarskjold stamps. Anyone who wants a misprint will be able to get one for four cents.

That means the few collectors who figured on several thousand dollars each for their misprints will have to figure anew. Now, according to H. R. Jorgenson, president of the San Antonio Stamp Club, "they eventually should be worth 8 or 10 cents each."

Postal officials expected and received angry complaints from some of the people who bought the original misprints.

One collector, Leonard Sherman of Irvington, N.J., had a complete sheet of 50 misprinted stamps. He had estimated the eventual value at half a million dollars. Now two dollars will get any collector the same—though deflated—prize.

The lst dream of half a million dollars hit Sherman hard.

"There won't be any more people collecting stamps," he said. "It would be pointless to try."

Other reactions, however, were more philosophical.

"What you haven't got, you do not miss," said Mrs. Terry Terregrossa of Carmel, N.Y., who had 48 of the stamps with the inverted yellow background and the 4-cent designation in the wrong place.

The post office said the decision to produce misprints was in line with Postmaster General J. Edward Day's "policy of avoiding production or rare or overvalued philatelic items."

James F. Kelleher, special assistant to Day, said collectors can buy the new misprints through the philatelic sales agency of the Post Office Department in Washington.

The stamp bears a line portrait of Hammarskjold on the right and the U.N. headquarters building on the left, both outlined in brown against a yellow background. Across the top is a black border into which the portrait extends.

AFL-CIO Ends Relations With NAACP

WASHINGTON (AP)—The AFL-CIO broke off relations Tuesday with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to protest activities of the NAACP's labor secretary, Herbert Hill.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, announced he had been authorized by the federation's Executive Council to write the NAACP saying the AFL-CIO wants to continue to cooperate to curb racial discrimination.

Meany said the AFL-CIO has suspended financial support to the NAACP.

Meany said Hill has been making "baseless charges" of racial discrimination against some unions and has been trying to get unions stripped of bargaining rights through National Labor Relations Board procedures on the ground the unions are practicing discrimination.

Meany again acknowledged certain unions do practice discrimination and said it must stop. But he said Hill's plan to remove bargaining rights from unions would do nothing to end discrimination practiced in plants.

In New York, NAACP Executive Secretary Roy Wilkins said individual unions contribute financial support to the NAACP but that the AFL-CIO does not.

He continued: "They are suspending something that doesn't exist. Frankly, I am a little puzzled at the report of a break off in relations. We have always worked with the labor movement. They have recognized our primary goals, we have recognized theirs."

In another labor move in the racial field, the Executive Council donated $5,000 to help push antitrust proceedings in the U.S. Dist. Court in Chicago, aimed at ending alleged discrimination against Negro physicians, nurses and patients in Chicago hospitals.

Income Falls Far Below Predictions

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration said Tuesday the federal budget is headed for a $7.8-billion deficit—the second largest in peacetime.

The figure is somewhat higher than officials had indicated earlier. And it was a far cry from the January forecast of a $500-million surplus.

A Budget Bureau announcement placed most of the responsibility for the sea of red ink on Congress, a sluggish economy, and the administration's own changes in tax policy.

Termed Not Dangerous

Emphasized was an official view that the big deficit would not damage the economy.

"With the existing level of unemployment and unused plant capacity," the Budget Bureau said, "the deficit is neither inflationary nor dangerous to our balance of payments position."

Cuba had little impact on the revised estimates for the 1963 fiscal year that began July 1. The bureau said that if the situation does not worsen, the Cuban crisis will cost about $100 million. It termed this "the roughest kind of allowance."

Revenues Decline

Revenues for fiscal 1963 were put at $85.9 billion—$7.1 billion lower than the level foreseen when President Kennedy first sent the budget to Congress last January. The bureau said the sharp drop was due to "the slower-than-expected rate of economic recovery and changes in tax laws and regulations."

Record peacetime spending of $93.7 billion was predicted. This is $1.2 billion higher than the January forecast—an increase attributed to congressional changes in administration bills to boost postal rates and overhaul the farm program. Higher interest charges on a bigger-than-expected national debt also played a part, adding $400 million to the spending forecast.

Military Costs High

Surprisingly, the revised figures showed no change in military outlays, still figured at $48.3 billion. The announcement said increases in Pentagon programs, including the costs of the Cuban blockade and related activities, were offset by shelving of the administra-

Red China Recalls All Ambassadors

WASHINGTON (AP)—Communist China has ordered its ambassadors to return to Peiping for consultation, State Department sources reported Friday.

The instructions were sent out some time in October and the reason given was that the Red diplomats need a thorough briefing after the Chinese Communist party conference in September. State Department officials in reporting this said it has been standard practice to recall the ambassadors after such a conference.

They said they do not know how many have returned to Peiping thus far.

Communist sources give another version of Peiping's instructions. They say that Mao Tze-tung ordered his ambassadors to Moscow and other Communist capitals to return after a sharp exchange with the Kremlin.

The Red Chinese, these sources said, repeated their request that the Soviets furnish them with nuclear arms and, in general, share nuclear secrets with them.

Stevenson Rebuffs Goldwater

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) —U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson Tuesday rebuffed criticism of his disarmament stand by Sen. Barry Goldwater but said nothing about the Arizona Republican's demand for his ouster.

Goldwater, in a New York speech Monday night, called for the removal of Stevenson, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., Chester Bowles and Richard Goodwin from President Kennedy's administration.

Stevenson, in a letter to Goldwater Tuesday, said the senator did not quote him in full. He pointed out that he had told the General Assembly in his Sept. 20 policy speech that "we are not prepared to risk our survival. . . we cannot stake our national existence on blind trust."

"I hope that as a U.S. senator," Stevenson wrote Goldwater, "you feel some obligation to be accurate and responsible in your public statements and I trust you will keep that in mind if you have occasion to refer to any speech of mine again."

Wilcoxson Will Be Taken To New York

BALTIMORE (AP)—Joseph D. Tydings, U.S. attorney for Maryland, said Tuesday that Bobby Randell Wilcoxson, 33, will be taken Thursday to New York City for arraignment on charges in connection with a bank robbery there in which a bank guard was machine gunned to death.

Tydings said Wilcoxson then will be tansported to Buffalo, N. Y., for another arraignment on charges stemming from a bank robbery there.

Wilcoxson and his girl friend, Jacqueline Ruth Rose, 19, were arrested in Baltimore last Saturday. Miss Rose will leave directly for Buffalo, Tydings said, to face an arraignment there in connection with the same bank robbery in which Wilcoxson was charged.

Tydings said both Wilcoxson and the Rose girl will leave Baltimore Wednesday. Both have been held here under bond of $100,000 each since their arrest.

Wilcoxson now has been charged in connection with seven bank robberies.

Red Chinese Call Khrush Opportunist

HONG KONG (AP) —Chinese Communist officials have told Westerners in Hong Kong that Soviet Premier Khrushchev is an opportunist, a weakling and a traitor to the Communist cause.

Those are surprisingly frank charges for Chinese Communist officials to make. They indicate Soviet-Chinese relations have taken a sharp turn for the worse.

There appears little doubt they will get even more rancorous when the charges get back to the Kremlin. The Chinese Communist officials gave every indication they fully expected their remarks to be reported.

The Chinese Communists said the Soviet people had been betrayed by Khrushchev's "policy of abundance"—a reference to Khrushchev's "pie in the sky" promises to the people which, they said, have not and cannot be fulfilled in the near future.

They said Khrushchev's attacks against Albania, whom Red China befriends, are proof he is a "traitor to proletarian solidarity."

On the other hand, they said, his friendship toward Yugoslavia, an ideological enemy of Red China, proves Khrushchev is an opportunist.

4 Governors' Races In Doubt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four governors' races and one contest for the Senate are still undecided with the prospect that they will remain uncertain for some time. Recounts were likely on all five of the races from last week's elections.

The four undetermined governorships are in Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Minnesota. The senatorial race in question is in South Dakota.

If present leaders in all the races emerge winners, the nation's governors will break down into 34 Democrats and 16 Republicans—exactly what it was before the election—and the Senate will count 68 Democrats and 32 Republicans, a gain of four for the Democrats.

Naval Base Injected In Negotiations

Red Cross Plan Dropped; Mikoyan Supports Castro

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union and Cuba Tuesday countered U.S. demands with new proposals that reportedly injected the Guantanamo naval base into U.S.-Soviet negotiations on the Cuban crisis.

The formula stemmed apparently from the talks Soviet first Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan has been holding with Prime Minister Fidel Castro in Havana.

The proposals were offered as word came from Geneva that the International Committee of the Red Cross had abandoned plans to arrange inspection of Cuba-bound shipping.

Blockade Continues

One immediate result seen here was continuance of the U.S. naval blockade of Cuba for an undetermined period.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov and Cuban Ambassador Carlos Lechuga laid the new proposals before Acting Secretary-General U Thant in a private meeting of an hour and 15 minutes.

Later Kuznetsov called on U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson at the U.S. mission to the United Nations. Kuznetsov requested the meeting in order to present the proposals to Stevenson, special adviser John J. McCloy, and U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost.

The three U.S. representatives conferred Monday in Washington with President Kennedy. The United States was reported holding firm to its demands that the Soviet Union pull its jet bombers out of Cuba and abide by promises to permit verification of the dismantling of Soviet missile bases.

Certain Rejection

Reliable sources said there was nothing especially new in the Soviet-Cuban formula and it seemed certain the United States would reject it.

The informants described the proposals as based on the five demands made earlier by Castro. These included withdrawal of the United States from Guantanamo, and end to the U.S. arms blockade, and adoption of measures by the United States to prevent hostile activity against Cuba by exile groups.

Mikoyan, who has been in Havana for nearly two weeks, was quoted as expressing support for the demands in a speech in the Cuban capital Monday night.

Authoritative sources said in Geneva that the International Committee of the Red Cross had decided not to take part in the inspection of Cuba-bound ships because two of its basic conditions were not met: Red Cross intervention was no longer vitally necessary for maintenance of world peace; Castro failed to give unconditional approval to the plan.

Red China Recalls All Ambassadors

WASHINGTON (AP)—Communist China has ordered its ambassadors to return to Peiping for consultation, State Department sources reported Friday.

The instructions were sent out some time in October and the reason given was that the Red diplomats need a thorough briefing after the Chinese Communist party conference in September. State Department officials in reporting this said it has been standard practice to recall the ambassadors after such a conference.

They said they do not know how many have returned to Peiping thus far.

Communist sources give another version of Peiping's instructions. They say that Mao Tze-tung ordered his ambassadors to Moscow and other Communist capitals to return after a sharp exchange with the Kremlin.

The Red Chinese, these sources said, repeated their request that the Soviets furnish them with nuclear arms and, in general, share nuclear secrets with them.

Stevenson Rebuffs Goldwater

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) —U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson Tuesday rebuffed criticism of his disarmament stand by Sen. Barry Goldwater but said nothing about the Arizona Republican's demand for his ouster.

Goldwater, in a New York speech Monday night, called for the removal of Stevenson, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., Chester Bowles and Richard Goodwin from President Kennedy's administration.

Stevenson, in a letter to Goldwater Tuesday, said the senator did not quote him in full. He pointed out that he had told the General Assembly in his Sept. 20 policy speech that "we are not prepared to risk our survival. . . we cannot stake our national existence on blind trust."

"I hope that as a U.S. senator," Stevenson wrote Goldwater, "you feel some obligation to be accurate and responsible in your public statements and I trust you will keep that in mind if you have occasion to refer to any speech of mine again."

Red Chinese Call Khrush Opportunist

HONG KONG (AP) —Chinese Communist officials have told Westerners in Hong Kong that Soviet Premier Khrushchev is an opportunist, a weakling and a traitor to the Communist cause.

Those are surprisingly frank charges for Chinese Communist officials to make. They indicate Soviet-Chinese relations have taken a sharp turn for the worse.

There appears little doubt they will get even more rancorous when the charges get back to the Kremlin. The Chinese Communist officials gave every indication they fully expected their remarks to be reported.

The Chinese Communists said the Soviet people had been betrayed by Khrushchev's "policy of abundance"—a reference to Khrushchev's "pie in the sky" promises to the people which, they said, have not and cannot be fulfilled in the near future.

They said Khrushchev's attacks against Albania, whom Red China befriends, are proof he is a "traitor to proletarian solidarity."

On the other hand, they said, his friendship toward Yugoslavia, an ideological enemy of Red China, proves Khrushchev is an opportunist.

4 Governors' Races In Doubt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four governors' races and one contest for the Senate are still undecided with the prospect that they will remain uncertain for some time. Recounts were likely on all five of the races from last week's elections.

The four undetermined governorships are in Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Minnesota. The senatorial race in question is in South Dakota.

If present leaders in all the races emerge winners, the nation's governors will break down into 34 Democrats and 16 Republicans—exactly what it was before the election—and the Senate will count 68 Democrats and 32 Republicans, a gain of four for the Democrats.

Whipping Post Law Is Invoked In Delaware

Judge Sentences Young Man To Get Twenty Lashes

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Franklin W. Cannon was sentenced Tuesday to 20 lashes, well laid on, at a Delaware whipping post.

Judge Stewart Lynch of Superior Court ordered the punishment of the 20-year-old Dover man under a state law adopted in 1717 that says "the punishment of whipping shall be inflicted publicly by strokes on the bare back well laid on."

Cannon was sentenced to 20 lashes and three years in prison 11 months ago for auto theft, but Judge Lynch suspended sentence and put Cannon on five years probation.

ORDERS LASHING — Judge Stewart Lynch of Dover, Del., ordered a sentence of 20 lashes at a whipping post for Franklin W. Cannon Jr., 20, of Dover, after finding him guilty of violating his probation.

Judge Lynch ordered the sentences carried out for violation of parole after Cannon was convicted of petty larceny later.

The lashes would be carried out at the convenience of the Board of Corretcions. Whipping posts are located in New Castle and Kent counties.

No one has been whipped in Delaware since 1952, when a man received 20 lashes for beating his wife. The prison warden administers the whipping with a cat o' nine tails.

Chinese Reds Criticize USSR

TOKYO (AP) — Red China sharply criticized the Soviet Union's missile retreat in Cuba again today. It described Yugoslavia's defense of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's backdown as "sinister and venomous."

The Red Chinese regime's newest barbs against Khrushchev were thinly disguised behind criticism of "the disgraceful role of the Tito group on the Cuban question," in an editorial in the official Peiping People's Daily.

The Red Chinese generally refrain from direct public criticism of the Soviet Union, preferring to strike at Yugoslavia with which Moscow is on good terms again as it is with Yugoslav's President Tito.

Estes Withdraws His Pauper's Oath

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI)—Bankrupt Billie Sol Estes changed his mind Tuesday and announced plans to withdraw a pauper's oath after a federal judge ordered him to appear in court Wednesday to answer questions by government attorneys.

One of Estes' attorneys, John Dennison of Pecos, filed the pauper's oath petition Monday and said Estes could not even afford the $3,500 cost of appealing the order which held him bankrupt.

Federal Judge R. E. Thomason set a hearing for 3 p.m. EST Wednesday and ordered Estes to appear to answer questions. It was then that Dennison went into federal court and notified Judge Thomason that Estes will withdraw a pauper's oath.

Major L. Gordon Cooper To Orbit Earth 18 Times

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr. Tuesday was named pilot for the next U.S. manned space flight, a one-day mission scheduled next April.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced selection of the Air Force major for the flight which will take him 18 times around the world.

Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr., the first American to ride a rocket into space, was named Cooper's backup pilot. Shepard made a 15-minute suborbital space trip May 5, 1961.

Cooper, a native of Shawnee, Okla., was the standby pilot on the recent six-orbit flight of spaceman Walter M. Schirra Jr. Schirra's flight is the longest American manned-space mission to date.

Cooper is the only eligible member of the seven-man Mercury astronaut team who has not made a space flight.

Five of the astronauts have been rocketed into space. Donald K. Slayton was grounded earlier this year because of a heart flutter.

Three Marines Hurt In Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department identified Tuesday three Marines injured when a land mine at the Navy's Guantanamo Base, Cuba, was detonated accidentally.

The Pentagon said a group of Marines was resurveying the location of mines in the base's defense system Nov. 3 when one of them accidentally tripped on a mine. All three of the injured have since been brought to the Naval Hospital at Philadelphia where their wounds were reported as serious but not critical.

The injured included:

Lance Cpl. Robert L. Mehaffie, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mehaffie, 220 West 5th St., Frederick, Md. He suffered loss of both legs and had eye injuries.

Pvt. John S. Turner, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Turner, Route 1. Sharpsburg, Md. Both legs were fractured.

VD Reported On Increase In Nation

Surgeon General Urges Physicians Toward New Control

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. surgeon general urges doctors to heed the lesson of the recent resurgence of venereal disease, lest they become complacent in the belief that they have other diseases under permanent control.

Dr. Luther L. Terry said Monday many health officials thought that "VD" had essentially been licked by 1955 only to have it surge again as soon as national control efforts were relaxed.

He spoke at the 69th annual meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States.

Danger Of Complaceny

"Our experience with VD should sound a warning against the dangers of complacency in the control of other diseases," he said.

"This is one of the purposes which led to the Vaccination Assistance Act, which was enacted by Congress in September of 1962.

"This is a very significant piece of legislation, I believe, because it looks toward the eradication of polio, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus. As a practical means toward that goal, it provides for grants to the states and communities to purchase vaccine and conduct immunication programs."

"Veneral disease, particularly syphilis, is a public health problem we thought we had well under control," Terry said.

Stopped Too Soon

"We set up 'rapid treatment' centers, and these were so successful that by 1953 the rate for primary and secondary syphilis had been brought down to 6.2 per 100,000 population, one-tenth of the rate for 1943.

"We decided—too soon, apparently-that our job was done. Rapid treatment centers were closed. Federal appropriations for veneral disease control dropped from $9.8 million in 1953 to $3 million two years later. State and local programs, with only one-third as much federal assistance, were somehow expected to drive the VD rate down to some irreducible minimum."

But, he added, "Events did not occur quite that way. As soon as we began to relax our efforts, the incidence of syphilis began to rise. Last year, there were 10.4 cases per 100,000 population, as against an all-time low of 3.8 cases per 100,000 population five years earlier."

Husband Questioned In Wife Shooting

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Police questioned Tuesday a 47-year-old man whose wife was found shot to death in her home.

Mrs. Gertrude Myatt, 37, a German war bride who has been in this country for the past nine years, was found with wounds in chest. A 38-caliber revolver and three expended shells were found nearby.

A daughter, 11-year-old Hannelore, told police her father told her to telephone police after the shooting.

tion's Civil Defense legislation.

On at least one count, the document struck a relatively optimistic note.

The bureau said the Gross National Product—the value of total output—is estimated now in the range of $554 billion for 1962. To achieve this, the total would have to rise by $8 billion, on an annual basis, in these last three months of the year. That would be the largest quarterly gain since the fall of 1961. A smaller increase presumably would mean a larger deficit.

Short Of Estimate

Even at $554 billion, the Gross National Product would fall far short of the administration's January prediction of $570 billion. The 1962 forecast for personal income also was lowered, from $448 billion to $441 billion.

Still another measure of the economy's failure to meet administration goals was seen in the revised estimate of corporate profits for the year—$50.7 billion instead of $56.5 billion.

The deficit now foreseen would compare with last year's deficit of $6.3 billion. It would be second only to the $12.4 billion peacetime deficit of fiscal 1959.

Larceny Trials Set Friday

Two local young men will be tried Friday at 10:30 a. m. in Allegany County Circuit Court on charges of grand and petty larceny.

Eric Drake Gibbs, 19, of 514 Washington Street, and Donald Elwood Duffy, 18, of 705 Elm Street, waived their right to indictment by the grand jury and will be tried on criminal informations filed yesterday by Donald W. Mason, deputy state's attorney.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris will preside at the trial. Mr. Mason said Thomas N. Berry will represent Gibbs and Gorman E. Getty will be counsel for Duffy.

The criminal informations filed yesterday indicated the two young men are charged with the theft of a public address transmitter and microphone belonging to Central YMCA and valued at $150; a two-way radio and microphone valued at $140 belonging to John Kastner; a radio control head and radio speaker head valued at $75 taken from a State Police cruiser, and a box of tools valued at $70 and owned by John Prendergast.

Fire Course To Begin

Volunteer firemen of LaVale and Bowling Green will begin a basic course in firefighting Monday at 7 p. m. in the fire hall at LaVale.

The 20-week course is being sponsored by the training committees of the Allegany-Garrett Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association and the Maryland State Firemen's Association and will be given by the Fire Service Extension of the University of Maryland under the direction of Robert Byrus.

C&P Challenges Method To Hike Phone Rates

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Public Service Commission's method of computing telephone rate increases was challenged Tuesday in the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Richard W. Case, representing the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., asked the high court to wipe out a 1961 rate increase and send the case back to the PSC for a redetermination according to the law and facts.

The most recent increase, which the C&P said averaged only 30 cents per phone per year, was challenged on three grounds:

1. That the PSC ignored new company testimony about its rate base and used instead the same formula it has applied since 1952—adding a fixed and "arbitrary" figure of $3,060,000 to what it found to be the original cost of the equipment less depreciation.

2. That the utility was not allowed to include the full amount of $18,293,121 it paid in federal income taxes as part of its operating expenses.

3. That the utility was not allowed to include the $93,344 it gave to charitable organizations as part of operating expenses.

Case said the company was not questioning the amount of the increase but the method followed. He said law requires the commission to determine a fair value and rate of return for the company's investment.

"The plain and simple fact is that the commission has failed to exercise any judgment at all in reaching its decision in this case," he said.

"The commission applied incorrect and patently erroneous legal criteria," Case argued. He said the $3,060,000 figure it used to cover inflation "has become a rubber stamp" for all such rate cases since 1952.

The firm had asked for an increase in revenue totaling $13.5 million. It was granted $856,000.

Francis X. Gallagher, people's counsel to the PSC, contended the commission order should be upheld. He said the rate increase was not arbitrary and that the commission acted within its legal discretion in arriving at what it considered a reasonable increase.

"You cannot consider this case without looking at the whole picture," Gallagher said. He pointed out that the company has had seven prior rate increases since 1947, and has increased its total revenue by 52 per cent.

Gallagher said the phone company had been before the commission more times than any other utility, although the Baltimore Transit Co. was a close rival. Both have fared well, he said.

If anything, said Gallagher, the PSC "sinned on the side of generosity" in granting the latest increase. He said it should have used some figure less than $3,060,000 in adding to depreciated original cost of equipment.

The five judges who heard the case, headed by Senior Judge William L. Henderson, took the arguments under advisement. An opinion is not expected for several weeks.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
3 ♣	3 ♠	4 ♣	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣

The declarer in today's hand got away with his enterprising contract of four hearts when East and West missed their signals and failed to take full advantage of their resources.

West, with only five winners, was somewhat aggressive in his opening bid of three clubs but, with his lack of fortification in the major suits, the situation seemed desperate enough to warrant drastic action. As for North's overcall of three spades, it is freely conceded that that entails some risk, but the situation had to be treated drastically, and there was nothing to do but take a chance. The pass in this case would be entirely craven. In the circumstances, South's bid of four hearts may be regarded as routine.

West opened the king of clubs on which East signaled encouragingly with the seven. A club continuation was ruffed by declarer who proceeded to draw the trump in four rounds. The spade finesse was taken, losing to East's king, and the club return was trumped with South's last heart. When the ace of spades dropped the remaining cards in that suit, declarer had a place to put his losing diamonds and he scored an overtrick.

East was quick to place the finger of blame on his partner for not shifting to a diamond at trick two, contending that, unless the defense was able to establish tricks in that suit, there could be no reasonable hope of defeating the contract. His reasoning was of course faultless, but it was his own shoddy technique that laid the basis for the defensive lapse.

East, having sized up matters at trick one, should direct the defense. He could, if he so desired, follow to the king of clubs with the deuce requesting his partner to shift to another suit. The appearance of the dummy makes it clear that diamonds is the area in which to attack. However the more direct procedure would be to overtake West's lead with the ace of clubs, in order to assure a diamond shift at the second trick, for unless West has the queen of diamonds the defense might as well fold camp.

Teams field 10 to 300 players instead of the customary 11. Contests last for days amid a carnival air. A successful bowler sometimes turns cartwheels down the pitch; impromptu dances celebrate a hit.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Those dates than mere talk about Eleanor's magazine writer Eleanor Harris book. Ken is one of my favorite is having around New York with people and published one of my Doubleday's editor-in-chief Ken books, "The Gay Illiterate." McCormick, are more personal Eleanor's new book "Career Cat," deals with the career of Lois Ella Adams and her famous white Persian cat which knocks down $50 an hour posing for those national magazine ads, particularly for Revlon. The manuscript has already been read by Shirley McLaine, who is toying with the idea of portraying—no, not the cat, but Miss Adams, in the movie.

Ireland's great actress Siobhan McKenna has agreed to play Nora Nesbitt, the woman novelist in Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage". Laurence Harvey stars as Philip Carey, a role that is supposed to be a portrait of Maugham himself as a young doctor. The role of Mildred, which in the original movie made Bette Davis famous, is still uncast.

That was Bo Belinsky visiting Ann-Margret on the set of "Bye Bye Birdie" at Columbia. But the inside story behind Bo's call at Columbia was to see producer William Castle who is thinking of the Angel pitcher for the male lead in "The Candy Web."

Bo should jump at the chance because "Candy Web" is being sweetened up by Castle bringing 14 representative teenage girls from countries around the world to portray daughters of diplomats.

But 'till they get here, Bo stopped off to visit Ann-Margret. That's playing it safe.

A pleasant telephone call from Richard Morris, author of the highly successful "Unsinkable Molly Brown," giving me some news. Richard has sold his new play "Golden Gate" to David Merrick. This will not reach the stage until 1964 because the musical score has to be written, and a cast chosen.

"I plan to open it in California first, if that's all right with Merrick," said Richard.

He tells me his story of San Francisco starts the day after the earthquake of 1906 and has to do with the rebuilding of the city, and goes to the year 1950. He went to visit his family in Berkeley, and became so interested in the history of San Francisco he put everything aside to write his play.

The lines were so busy with the election that it took Richard Egan several hours to get through to me from Santa Fe. He said it was warm and sunny there, and he was delighted the way his "Empire" TV series with Terry Moore is going. Pat (Mrs. E.) also got on the telephone and said they have a house in Santa Fe, and their little daughter and playmates, and she was glad to see Richard so happy.

The days certainly go by. It's 10 years since O.R.T. (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training) started paging me to give them publicity on their charity day at Hollywood Park.

Well, here it is again, with Jane Wyman as president. On Saturday there will be a luncheon and Harness Races at Hollywood Park, followed by a cocktail at which Freddie Karger and his orchestra will play. Again this year they will have another chariot race for which Tommy Sands and Jimmy Darren with Diane McBain and Tuesday Weld have been tentatively set as charioteers. This is always a fun party as well as a worthy charity.

British star Janet Munro has become formally engaged to Ian Hendry, English actor, who just obtained his divorce. Janet, former Disney star, was divorced from actor Tony Wright in 1960.

Elizabeth Allen no sooner arrived back in Hollywood with one of those haircuts that practically leaves a girl bald than Alfred Hitchcock snatched her for his next TV terrorizer titled "The 31st of February."

Everyone is happy over Buddy Ebsen's great success in his TV series "The Beverly Hillbillies," which led the Neilsen poll. Jimmy McHugh Jr., who represents Buddy and other actors in this series, is very happy over its success.

For the first time in his movie career, Maximilian Schell goes out on a personal appearance tour. After taking a bow for "Hamlet" at the San Francisco film festival he'll start ballyhooing his movie "The Reluctant Saint."

But Lancaster, who hates to fly, returns to the USA from Italy (where he's just finished "The Leopard") on the SS Christopher Columbus, arriving in New York Nov. 17.

Lee Parks, who was Joseph Schenck's nurse for so many years, has invested in a booking package deal, which has just signed up Tony Bennett for the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium Nov. 17.

Frank Sinatra hosted a family party including Mrs. Nancy Sinatra, the Tommy Sands', and daughter Tina, at Trader Vic's.

Do You Suffer From Sick, Throbbing Migraine Headaches?

New Medical Discovery Never Before Available Now Released To Public. No Prescription Needed.

Today, science has announced a doctor's new formula which has been especially developed to relieve both the throbbing pain and sickish feeling of migraine-type headaches. Tests conducted by a practicing New York physician showed that in patient after patient—pain-relief and comfort were obtained in minutes. And all without the use of narcotics, codeine or ergot remedies which may upset the stomach and so further aggravate the condition.

This remarkable new formula is called Duplexin®. It is the first headache discovery in the history of medicine with this exclusive formula, (a unique 2-layer pink and white tablet). It relieves both headache pain and a sick, upset stomach with this exclusive formula.

Here are the medical facts why Duplexin is safer, faster, more effective—why it's unlike the usual headache remedies. Only Duplexin unites powerful doctor-approved pain relievers with this special stomach-soothing antacid. In seconds, Duplexin does what no aspirin or buffered aspirin can ever do. It contains exclusive, hospital-tested medications not found in any alkalizer or seltzer. Duplexin's white layer concentrates on relieving pain faster. Throbbing pain relieved in minutes. Its pink layer relieves that sickish feeling and protects your stomach as it keeps on speeding relief.

Duplexin also calms nervous stress (which so often causes migraine) and helps relieve depression. Taken at the first sign of an attack, Duplexin actually helps prevent those migraine pains. Ask for Duplexin Tablets at any drug-store. Now available without prescription.

Eight leading men tell what they think are the special winning ways that every wife should have!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Charm Shouldn't Stop At The Altar

Far wiser is the wife who wants her husband's friends to think her charming and to enjoy being in her home. If she is a business woman as well as a wife, she can profit by adding to her abilities that of making her male associates accept her as a friendly colleague.

Any woman who is inclined to disagree with such ideas need only refresh her understanding of the definition of admiration. High regard, esteem, and honor are important implications of the world.

There is never an age, a situation, nor a state where charm is not an asset. A wife's charm even affects her husband's business. How frequently I hear tell-tale remarks such as, "Have to go to the Jonses tonight. He's a nice chap, but she's . . ." and a shoulder-shrug ends the comment.

Whether at home or at work, the praiseworthy qualities in a wife possess the same characteristics. Here are what some men in various fields have to say of them:

From a leading business man: "A spruce, trim appearance counts for a large percentage of a wife's success at home or in the office."

From a portrait painter: "The inner worth of the personality is what counts. It's always revealed in a natural-looking, expressive face."

Said a novelist: "I enjoy the kind of a woman who can express her thoughts."

A handsome professor stated: "It is a great pleasure to be in the company of a charming woman who thinks — informed thoughts, that is."

"My deepest admiration goes to the woman who practices generosity towards others," was the comment of a doctor.

"Tact and courtesy are two of the most charming qualities a woman can have," affirmed a store executive.

An army officer chose "humor and gayety" as the most winning qualities.

The one bachelor in the group summarized: "My idea of the perfect wife is one who has eyes only for her husband but ears for everyone."

The world's largest wildlife sanctuary is the Etosha Pan Conservation Territory in Southwest Africa. It covers 26,000 square miles—the size of Delaware and West Virginia combined. The area protects spectacular herds of antelopes, zebras and elephants.

A bird known as the crocodile bird enters a crocodile's mouth and is permitted to pick the saw-like teeth and retire unharmed. Chocolate and cocoa both are derived from the same source, the cocoa bean.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last year my husband's firm sent him to Europe on a 10-month assignment. When Bob and I returned to the U. S. we brought gifts for close friends and relatives. Since we both love sculpture, we picked up a few lovely pieces in Italy and France.

Bob has an elderly aunt of whom we are especially fond. We brought for her what we considered the prize piece of sculpture — a nude woman, head bowed, holding a single rose. The name of the piece is "First Love."

Last night we were at her home for dinner along with some others. There was "First Love" — to my astonishment, wearing a Mother Hubbard apron. Auntie crochets and apparently she decided to dress up the statue.

Nothing was said, but a few guests could scarcely believe their eyes. Do you feel Bob should have a word wtih his Aunt? — NON-PLUSSED

DEAR NON-PLUSSED: Auntie now has a real conversation piece whether she knows it or not.

It would be pointless to say anything because obviously "First Love" was clothed for a reason. It's too late in Auntie's life to do anything about this particular bat in her belfry.

DEAR ANN: My mother-in-law is wonderful. It's my mother who is making a nervous wreck out of me.

Every morning mother telephones me to "find out what's new."She is fascinated by any scrap of trivial gossip. I don't care for idle chatter so I contribute very little. She claims I am "the least friendly" of all her children.

Mother dislikes my husband intensely and is constantly taking digs at him. For example she'll say, "My, but Wallace was unpleasant last night. I'm glad I'm not married to HIM!"

These remarks cut me deeply. I've tried to ignore them but it's impossible. When the telephone rings in the morning I shudder. My stomach gets tied uu in knots. Sometimes it upsets me for the whole day.

Is there a solution? I feel utterly helpless.

— CANADIAN WRECK

DEAR CANADIAN: Yes, there's a solution, but it won't be easy. For the first time in your life I suggest you assume the role of an adult in relation to your mother.

Tell her you will not tolerate any future derogatory remarks about your husband. And prove it by chopping her off in mid-sentence if she forgets.

Give her exactly three minutes on the phone when she calls. Plead "a million things to do this morning" and after a while she'll get the idea.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 17-year-old daughter left home after an argument. She said she was going to rent a room someplace. We did not hear from her for several days and then she phoned to sap her aunt and uncle had invited her to move in with them. That same day I went over to talk to the aunt (who is my sister-in-law) and learned that the girl had told them we had put her out of the house. This is not true.

Now our daughter wants to come home. My husband says he will not allow her to come home until she tells our relatives the truth. I want the girl home regardless. She has always been difficult to handle. At least if she is at home I will have some idea of where she is and who she's out with.

Now the problem is between my husband and me. Am I wrong, or is he? — TOOTH AND NAIL

DEAR TOOTH: Your husband is preoccupied with what his relatives think when the central problem is his daughter and how to deal with her hostility.

The girl belongs at home. And, incidentally, she could probably profit from professional help. I hope you can manage both promptly.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamtped envelope.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Those dates magazine writer Eleanor Harris is having around New York with Doubleday's editor-in-chief Ken McCormick, are more personal than mere talk about Eleanor's book. Ken is one of my favorite people and published one of my books, "The Gay Illiterate."

Eleanor's new book "Career Cat," deals with the career of Lois Ella Adams and her famous white Persian cat which knocks down $50 an hour posing for those national magazine ads, particularly for Revlon. The manuscript has already been read by Shirley McLaine, who is toying with the idea of portraying—no, not the cat, but Miss Adams, in the movie.

Ireland's great actress Siobhan McKenna has agreed to play Nora Nesbitt, the woman novelist in Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage". Laurence Harvey stars as Philip Carey, a role that is supposed to be a portrait of Maugham himself as a young doctor. The role of Mildred, which in the original movie made Bette Davis famous, is still uncast.

That was Bo Belinsky visiting Ann-Margret on the set of "Bye Bye Birdie" at Columbia. But the inside story behind Bo's call at Columbia was to see producer William Castle who is thinking of the Angel pitcher for the male lead in "The Candy Web."

Bo should jump at the chance because "Candy Web" is being sweetened up by Castle bringing 14 representative teenage girls from countries around the world to portray daughters of diplomats.

But 'till they get here, Bo stopped off to visit Ann-Margret. That's playing it safe.

A pleasant telephone call from Richard Morris, author of the highly successful "Unsinkable Molly Brown," giving me some news. Richard has sold his new play "Golden Gate" to David Merrick. This will not reach the stage until 1964 because the musical score has to be written, and a cast chosen.

"I plan to open it in California first, if that's all right with Merrick," said Richard.

He tells me his story of San Francisco starts the day after the earthquake of 1906 and has to do with the rebuilding of the city, and goes to the year 1950. He went to visit his family in Berkeley, and became so interested in the history of San Francisco he put everything aside to write his play.

The lines were so busy with the election that it took Richard Egan several hours to get through to me from Santa Fe. He said it was warm and sunny there, and he was delighted the way his "Empire" TV series with Terry Moore is going. Pat (Mrs. E.) also got on the telephone and said they have a house in Santa Fe, and their little daughter and playmates, and she was glad to see Richard so happy.

The days certainly go by. It's 10 years since O.R.T. (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training) started paging me to give them publicity on their charity day at Hollywood Park.

Well, here it is again, with Jane Wyman as president. On Saturday there will be a luncheon and Harness Races at Hollywood Park, followed by a cocktail at which Freddie Karger and his orchestra will play. Again this year they will have another chariot race for which Tommy Sands and Jimmy Darren with Diane McBain and Tuesday Weld have been tentatively set as charioteers. This is always a fun party as well as a worthy charity.

British star Janet Munro has become formally engaged to Ian Hendry, English actor, who just obtained his divorce. Janet, former Disney star, was divorced from actor Tony Wright in 1960.

Elizabeth Allen no sooner arrived back in Hollywood with one of those haircuts that practically leaves a girl bald than Alfred Hitchcock snatched her for his next TV terrorizer titled "The 31st of February."

Everyone is happy over Buddy Ebsen's great success in his TV series "The Beverly Hillbillies," which led the Neilsen poll. Jimmy McHugh Jr., who represents Buddy and other actors in this series, is very happy over its success.

For the first time in his movie career, Maximilian Schell goes out on a personal appearance tour. After taking a bow for "Hamlet" at the San Francisco film festival he'll start ballyhooing his movie "The Reluctant Saint."

But Lancaster, who hates to fly, returns to the USA from Italy (where he's just finished "The Leopard") on the SS Christopher Columbus, arriving in New York Nov. 17.

Lee Parks, who was Joseph Schenck's nurse for so many years, has invested in a booking package deal, which has just signed up Tony Bennett for the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium Nov. 17.

Frank Sinatra hosted a family party including Mrs. Nancy Sinatra, the Tommy Sands', and daughter Tina, at Trader Vic's.

Mathias Resigns As Attorney For Midland

Williams Steps Out As Town Clerk Too

MIDLAND — John J. Mathias, who has been serving as town attorney, has resigned because he is moving to Washington, D. C., according to Mayor Lionel D. Baker.

The Mayor and Council will name a successor in a few days. Mayor Baker commended Mr. Mathias for his efforts in obtaining a new charter and for preparing a new set of ordinances for Midland.

A $2,340 payment to the Cumberland Contracting Company for blacktopping of Midland streets was approved by the Mayor and Council Monday night. That leaves an unpaid balance of about $1,800 for the work done last summer.

Midland's officials also approved a $15 contribution to the Midland Fire Company for its children's Christmas party and $5 to the County United Fund. The increase in Maryland Municipal League dues also was accepted.

A report was submitted by Lowell Sowers of Frostburg on the audit he conducted of the town's books for the fiscal year which ended June 30.

David J. Williams, who has been town clerk for the past three years, resigned effective January 1 because of his election last week to the House of Delegates from Allegany County. Mrs. Mabel Smith will succeed him.

Mayor Baker reported that a number of complaints have been received about parking in prohibited zones near the Midland School. He cautioned that these no-parking areas are needed as a fire safety measure.

New fencing for the community playground has been received and will be installed soon.

Midland Fire Chief Harry Devlin asked the Mayor and Council to have a pole installed at the intersection of Paradise Street and Dan's Rock Road so that a new fire siren can be installed there. He said a number of volunteer firemen in that area cannot hear the fire siren at the fire hall. The pole will be installed.

The Christmas street lights have been repaired and will be installed about December 1.

Church Society To Meet Today

FROSTBURG — The Helping Hands Society of Eckhart Methodist Church will meet today at 7:30 p.m. with Vivian Cunningham in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Stella Porter will be in charge of the devotions.

Final plans will be made for the Christmas dinner. Hostesses will be Vivian Cunningham, Grace Felker and Ruth Filsinger.

Mt. Savage Pupils Discuss Resources

Students Hear Concert By String Trio

FROSTBURG — Paul Myers, president of the Thomas G. Pullen School PTA, presented a string trio from Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, to the students for a concert a recent afternoon.

The program included the entire Trio for Strings by Beethoven, a selection for String Trio by Dohnanyi, Frere Jacques with Pizzicato, and other pieces demonstrating the instruments.

Mrs. James Pierce, of the Music Department of Frostburg State Teachers College, called the program a "pillow" concert. The children brought pillows and rugs and were seated on the floor circling the performers, who were elevated on a platform in the middle of the auditorium.

Mrs. Pierce explained that this enabled all the children to see and hear the instruments at a view closer than the usual auditorium seating would permit. The children were absorbed in listening to the music and were very attentive.

The string trio was the second in a series of cultural programs to be presented this fall, Earlier, Dr. Dorothy Howard, of the English Department, presented a workshop of folk music of the area, and later this year a series of programs on the history and music of the piano will be presented.

Mathias Resigns As Attorney For Midland

Williams Steps Out As Town Clerk Too

MIDLAND — John J. Mathias, who has been serving as town attorney, has resigned because he is moving to Washington, D. C., according to Mayor Lionel D. Baker.

The Mayor and Council will name a successor in a few days. Mayor Baker commended Mr. Mathias for his efforts in obtaining a new charter and for preparing a new set of ordinances for Midland.

A $2,340 payment to the Cumberland Contracting Company for blacktopping of Midland streets was approved by the Mayor and Council Monday night. That leaves an unpaid balance of about $1,800 for the work done last summer.

Midland's officials also approved a $15 contribution to the Midland Fire Company for its children's Christmas party and $5 to the County United Fund. The increase in Maryland Municipal League dues also was accepted.

A report was submitted by Lowell Sowers of Frostburg on the audit he conducted of the town's books for the fiscal year which ended June 30.

David J. Williams, who has been town clerk for the past three years, resigned effective January 1 because of his election last week to the House of Delegates from Allegany County. Mrs. Mabel Smith will succeed him.

Mayor Baker reported that a number of complaints have been received about parking in prohibited zones near the Midland School. He cautioned that these no-parking areas are needed as a fire safety measure.

New fencing for the community playground has been received and will be installed soon.

Midland Fire Chief Harry Devlin asked the Mayor and Council to have a pole installed at the intersection of Paradise Street and Dan's Rock Road so that a new fire siren can be installed there. He said a number of volunteer firemen in that area cannot hear the fire siren at the fire hall. The pole will be installed.

The Christmas street lights have been repaired and will be installed about December 1.

Church Society To Meet Today

FROSTBURG — The Helping Hands Society of Eckhart Methodist Church will meet today at 7:30 p.m. with Vivian Cunningham in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Stella Porter will be in charge of the devotions.

Final plans will be made for the Christmas dinner. Hostesses will be Vivian Cunningham, Grace Felker and Ruth Filsinger.

Sixth graders of Mt. Savage School culminated a unit on "The Wise Use of Natural Resources" with an open house to which all elementary pupils were invited. The unit was taught by Miss Judi Burley of Frostburg State Teachers College under the supervision of Mrs. Helen Caldara. Guides for the pupils, pictured left to right, included Deborah Albright, Stephen Baker, James McKenzie, Deborah Rizer and Vicki Crabtree, members of the class. Four major areas of conservation which were studied were forests, soil, water and wildlife. Individual and group reports were given concerning questions compiled by the group. Songs and poems concerning natural resources were learned. Soil was tested for acid content. Beans were placed in rich and poor soil. Bean plants in the rich soil have grown to 20 inches while those in poor soil died.

Sewage Plan Explained To Rotarians

The question before the people of Allegany County now is the proper installation of an overall county sewage system, William A. Douglas, chairman of the City-County Water-Sewage Commission, told the Cumberland Rotary Club yesterday.

The report of the joint commission was presented to a group of 150 persons representing the Mayor and Council of Cumberland, the county commissioners and virtually every community in the county at a meeting last Wednesday in City Hall.

Douglas told the Rotarians, "This raises the further question of whether we will use treatment plant facilities already installed, or bypass these and build numerous treatment plants at such points as LaVale, Cresaptown, Bowling Green, Frostburg, Mt. Savage, Lonaconing, the Bedford Road, area, etc. Further, just how will we handle the sewage from the smaller localities such as Ellerslie, Corriganville, Barrelville, Midland, Barton, etc., if we build the above mentioned plants.

"Our report points out that with the use of interceptor sewers carrying all sewage to the two existing plants, we can have a less costly and much more efficient system which will also serve the smaller localities mentioned above, and other small villages along the interceptor rights-of-way.

The Rotarians were told that at last week's meeting representatives of the State Health Department and Matz, Childs and Associates, the engineering firm employed by the Allegany County Sanitary Commission, advised it would be advantageous to use the existing plants and interceptor sewers providing it would be economically feasible.

Douglas declared that he has spent the greater part of his life analyzing costs on engineering projects, many of them much larger than this one.

"I can only say the only way that it is not economically feasible would be the installation of numerous additional treatment plants and the abandonment of half the facilities of the Cumberland plant."

Douglas said the only objection the representative of the State Board of Health had to the plan of the joint commission was the possibility that it might hold up starting installation of the necessary sewers.

"The State Board of Health is not interested in how we install our sewage system, or what it costs. They only want to be sure that it will do the work properly and that we get it completed in the quickest possible time."

Thomas Shives, engineer for the State Board of Health, pointed out that Baltimore County, which has had numerous systems with small treatment plants in use for many years is dismantling the small plants and carrying the sewage in interceptors to a central treatment plant, Douglas declared.

"We want to stress the tremendous savings in operational costs that would accrue in treating the sewage in two large plants only, as against treating the same amount of sewage in the large plants not operating at capacity and eight or ten additional small plants."

He added that there is also tremendous savings in time and effort in the administrative setup of one authority as against numerous separate districts, many of which will overlap or have to handle sewage due to the fact that it will only run down hill.

"Our commission feels that the establishment of an Allegany County Water-Sewage Authority which would handle all sewage in the county and all water from the Savage River Dam would be of prime importance to the economic health of the entire county.

"After the completion of the Bloomington Dam, we would be in position to offer any worth while industry that might consider locating in the Potomac River Valley prompt and immediate answers to their water and sewage problems. We have the locations, we have the power and we have the railroads and roadways. All we lack is water and sewage."

Douglas called upon the Rotarians and the public to let their desires be known to the county's elected officers and representatives.

He also urged the community service committee of the club and all civic organizations throughout the county to work for the solution of the problem, two plants fed by interceptor sewers.

"When the Allegany County Sewage Authority is constituted, it will be necessary for it to make arrangements with the Mayor and Council of Cumberland to either purchase the Cumberland treatment plant outright or to make a satisfactory contract with them covering the treatment of county sewage. The decision on the question should be made promptly, preferably in 30 days, so that the whole sewage program can proceed without delay.

"In line with our original report, the water-sewage commission recommends that the County Commissioners and the Mayor and Council appoint a 'Citizens Advisory Commission' to make a study and recommendation on the problem to both bodies before any action be taken."

Douglas stated that a non-partisan appraisal organization should do the work at a cost shared by the county and city.

"Unless a fair basis of exchange can be found, both the citizens of the county and the cititzens of Cumberland stand to lose," Douglas concluded.

The Mayor and Council held an abbreviated meeting yesterday and only routine matters were discussed.

Two members were absent. Mayor Earl D. Chaney is out of town and Water Commissioner G. Ray Light was not present because of the death of his mother, services for whom were held this afternoon. Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder was acting mayor.

Council ordered city offices and departments closed November 22 in observance of Thanksgiving and gave residents of the Williams Street-Maryland Avenue intersection area permission to decorate the street in connection with the annual Fort Hill-Allegany football game.

The resignation of Mrs. Lesslie Lee Aronhalt as stenographer in the tax collector's office, effective December 6, was accepted.

Three bids were accepted including International Salt Company, $19.70 a ton for 40 tons of salt for streets; McIntyre Chevrolet, $1,236 for a cruiser for the Police Department; and $4,775.85 by Gratton Ford for a truck for the Street Department.

Mrs. Roeder was authorized to instruct Cumberland Contracting Company to proceed with installation of 308 feet of eight-inch sewer line in the bed of Wills Creek Avenue Extended for $1,982 which will include installation of three home connections, the city to furnish pipe and fittings.

Council received an invitation to attend the Police and Firemen's Ball Saturday, November 23.

A resolution of respect to the family of the late John Henry (Ditty) Stitcher, veteran police officer, was approved.

GENEVA (AP) — The World Council of Churches has condemned Chinese invasion of India and called for prompt negotiations or arbitration to settle the border dispute. The World Council, comprised of nearly all the world's Protestant and Orthodox Christian churches, also assured India's Christians of its "profound sympathy" and expressed hope "a just and peaceful settlement may be reached."

Sewage Plan Explained To Rotarians

The question before the people of Allegany County now is the proper installation of an overall county sewage system, William A. Douglas, chairman of the City-County Water-Sewage Commission, told the Cumberland Rotary Club yesterday.

The report of the joint commission was presented to a group of 150 persons representing the Mayor and Council of Cumberland, the county commissioners and virtually every community in the county at a meeting last Wednesday in City Hall.

Douglas told the Rotarians, "This raises the further question of whether we will use treatment plant facilities already installed, or bypass these and build numerous treatment plants at such points as LaVale, Cresaptown, Bowling Green, Frostburg, Mt. Savage, Lonaconing, the Bedford Road, area, etc. Further, just how will we handle the sewage from the smaller localities such as Ellerslie, Corriganville, Barrelville, Midland, Barton, etc., if we build the above mentioned plants.

"Our report points out that with the use of interceptor sewers carrying all sewage to the two existing plants, we can have a less costly and much more efficient system which will also serve the smaller localities mentioned above, and other small villages along the interceptor rights-of-way.

Nationalization In Quebec

"Socialism" is not quite the scare word in Canada that it is in the United States. In fact the people of Quebec province are expected to give a resounding vote of confidence today to the Liberal Party government that proposes to nationalize 11 of the province's biggest privately-owned utility companies.

Premier Jean Lesage announced last September he was taking the issue to the voters in a general election. He said that because of the magnitude and complexity of such a takeover, "we think we should not proceed further without seeking a specific mandate."

The opposition National Union Party seems to be telling the voters that if the electric companies are to be put under public ownership, it — and not the Liberal government — is the best bunch to entrust with the job. National Union leaders have attacked the nationalization proposal obliquely, though, by alleging that a large American firm recently dropped a plan to build a multi-million-dollar paper mill in the province when the company learned the Liberals were "flirting with socialism."

But electric power has been publicly owned in Saskatchewan for some years under the province's Cooperative Commonwealth Federation (Labor Party). Some electric power is publicly owned in Ontario province, where the Conservatives hold control. Nationalization of power in British Columbia is far advanced under the Social Credit Party which, ironically enough, has been considered Canada's strongest bulwark against socialism. Americans who are of a mind to fault Quebec for its decision might want to ponder this fact: In the United States today 24 per cent of electric energy production is publicly owned, compared with only 5 per cent 30 years ago.

The Pollsters Are Annoyed

I have a letter signed by Richard W. Oudersluys, President of Market-Opinion Research Company of Detroit, Michigan, in which he says:

"Your article 'One Man's Reply to Phone Survey,' published this week-end, was one of the most insulting attacks on a highly respected profession I have ever read. You have probably alienated thousands of men and women who are engaged in this work, many more who use it and the still more thousands of marketing students and their professors.

"One of the workers in our office suggested we hang your picture in our lobby, so that when any one of us passes it we can stick a pin in it or throw a handy dart at it."

I did not know that his was a "highly respected profession." I know, of course, that medicine, law, the clergy, teaching and other skills, requiring long years of study and training, are professions. I should imagine that his enterprise of interrupting persons at lunch is a semi-skilled industry involving only a rudimentary knowledge of the vernacular. "Madam, does your washer get clogged up?"

I am sorry that I have alienated thousands of men and women engaged in this work. If I worried about whom I alienated, I should have nothing else to do, because the truth always alienates somebody. Also, Oudersluys attempts to frighten me that there are thousands of marketing students and their professors. I suppose that every time I attack the use of heroin in this country, I should worry about what the thousands of users and pushers and their bankers think about me.

But to be serious about this thing, if one can be, on a very busy day, a young lady was called on the telephone by one of these pollsters and asked whether she had recently got any new electrical equipment. She replied, "Yes," whereupon a long list of such equipment was read to her, including electric irons, television, hi-fi, and all sorts of things. "Yes," she replied, "I recently got all of these except the washing machine."

"What did your television cost you, for instance?" (Meanwhile the stew began to burn.)

"Oh!" said the young thing, "about $801.30."

This knocked the pollster over.

"You didn't buy it in a discount house?"

"No!" she replied, and named the most expensive store for such doo-dads in New York.

The pollster could hardly believe her ears.

"What does your husband earn a month?" the pollster asked.

"$83.50 a month—he's a soldier."

The pollster must imagine that the young voice was either a liar or a multimillionaire. The truth is that she is a young bride and got a lot of wedding presents, some of which, as such things go at this early stage in life, are not usable.

She was also asked how many hours of leisure she had—to which she replied, "None." And then the busybody inquired as to her husband's education. No questions were asked about her sex life, or whether she hated her father and mother and therefore lived alone, or why girls left home.

The young one's indignation ran high because the stew was burned. When she told me the story, I asked her whether she thought answering a pollster was worth a well-thought-out stew with tarragon and red wine yet. Why did she not tell the gossip to mind her own business?

These pollsters have become a pest. They disturb one at lunch and dinner. They interfere when one is reading a book or even having a pleasant talk with his wife, or even an unpleasant one. They clutter the mail with questionnaires.

Apparently Oudersluys's point is that one must answer these questions to keep these marketeers at work. That may be a good reason. However, they can join the Navy and see the world; New York City is short of policemen and if they have the qualifications, they can get a job there—be pensioned-off after 20 years of service and encouraged to be idle forever after. The world is full of jobs for men of capacity and initiative.

But if one prefers to be a pollster by telephone, well and good. But do not expect courtesy or even an honest answer. There must be a more decent way to get this information.

Kennedy And Khrushchev May Be On Verge Of Better Understanding

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Delicate diplomatic negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union right now could pave the way for a major break-through for better understanding.

That is the opinion of diplomats close to the present talks on Cuba, some of whom believe that the USA and USSR could conceivably get back to the understanding which existed during their wartime alliance.

On the other hand, reapprochement could be upset by a shift of policy in the Kremlin, or by an upset in some of the delicate negotiations now taking place regarding the removal of offensive weapons from Cuba. The Soviet bombers, given to Castro, are a case in point. While they are old, and sitting ducks for any bomber attack from the United States, they have become a political issue because of criticism from Kennedy's enemies. And he insists on their removal.

Otherwise, however, the Administration believes that the good faith shown by Khrushchev in immediately removing the 42 medium range missiles from Cuba far outweighs the pin-pricks and irritants caused in large part by Fidel Castro. In fact, the boorish behavior of the bearded Cuban is reliably reported to have got on Russian nerves to such an extent that they are quite sympathetic with American problems regarding Castro.

Meanwhile, here are some of the long-range developments, considered far more important than the Castro irritations, which could pave the way for better understanding:

The Chinese-Indian War—This is a major problem for Khrushchev and could become one for President Kennedy. Their interests are essentially the same—namely, not permitting the two most populous countries in the world, with one-third of the world's population, to become embroiled in a major war.

For Khrushchev the problem is even more acute because he is torn between a Communist ally, China, and a neutral friend with which he has extremely close relations, India.

It may happen that Kennedy and Khrushchev may have to join in bringing combined, powerful pressure to stop the dangerous Chinese-Indian conflict.

Chinese Criticism of Khrushchev—The Chinese-Soviet rift led to the withdrawal last year of all Soviet technicians and aid. Several trainloads of experts with their equipment steamed back across the Trans-Siberian Railway.

But now the rift has become such that the People's World, official organ of the Chinese Communist Party, refers to Khrushchev's missile withdrawal from Cuba as "Munich appeasement" and the proposed UN inspection of the missile bases as "a serious violation of Cuba's sovereignty."

And in Bulgaria, Chinese Delegate Wu Hsiu-Chuan told the Bulgarian Communist Congress in a fiery speech that China would give aid to Cuba if the Russians withdrew.

Deflation of Castro—The Cuban crisis has had the effect not only of making the Russians fed up with Castro, but making Castro fed up with the Russians, plus a general conclusion all around Latin America, including even Mexico, that Castro is more of a buffoon than a champion of the people.

The solution which more and more Latins lean toward is the Brazilian proposal of a nuclear free zone in Latin America. The Russians have already bought this, in effect, by withdrawing their missiles from Cuba. The United States would buy it, if it did not bar the transportation of weapons across the Caribbean to the Panama Canal. And all Latin nations would welcome it with the possible exception of Castro.

Reason Over Berlin—The more reasonable men around Chancellor Adenauer are now discussing formulas for Berlin which will go a long way toward a solution of this most dangerous spot in Europe. It will be discussed with Adenauer at the White House this week.

Meanwhile, it's significant that neither Khrushchev nor other Russian leaders have issued any ultimatums regarding Berlin. Deputy Premier Alexei Kosygin, an industrial expert of the new Soviet school, gave a moderate speech on the 45th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, without sabre-rattling and no deadline for a settlement of Berlin.

Finally the USA and USSR are very close to agreement regarding a ban on nuclear testing. The United States has stopped testing. Russia will stop on November 20. It may well be that an agreement will be signed before the end of the year.

All these add up to the possibility of far greater achievements than Kennedy's so-called surrender of the right to invade Cuba or the right of on-site UN inspection of Cuban missile bases. They could point to very material and important gains for peace.

Demo House Strength Weaker Than In 1958

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—Quite a lot of publicity was given last week to the fact that the Democrats lost fewer seats in the House of Representatives than either party in power has sustained in an off-year election since 1934. But nobody seems to have pointed out that the Democrats in Congress are weaker in strength today than they were after the off-year election only four years ago. For in 1958 they achieved a membership of 283 as against their 259 this past week.

Nobody seems to have pointed out also that no Democratic president since the 1930's—when the Democrats elected 322 members in the House in 1934 and 333 members in 1936—has had anywhere near these totals in either a presidential or an off-year election.

The fact stands out that, were it not for the help of its conservative wing in the South, the Democratic Party today would be a minority party.

Thus, there are, for instance, 95 Democrats in the House of Representatives from the 11 states of the South and without these votes in the new Congress which assembles in January the Democrats would have only 164 seats as contrasted with the 176 held by the Republicans.

Since most of the Republicans are conservatives, this means that the conservative coalition of Republicans and Democrats in the House of Representatives retains a substantial majority — just as effective as the coalition majorities which have prevailed since 1938.

But, inasmuch as the 1934 election has received so much attention as a basis for comparison, it is interesting to note that after the bank holiday and deep depression of 1933, the election of 1933 furnished the first opportuntiy for the voters to express themselves on that issue. They were not only showing their resentment against the Republican Party for allegedly having brought on the economic debacle, but they were impressed by the efforts made by the Roosevelt Administration to bring recovery. That's why in the 1936 election the Democratic Party actually increased its seats in the House of Representatives from 322 in 1934 to 333 in 1936.

But two years later the turn came. The people became impatient over the failure of the New Deal to wipe out unemployment. Large numbers of voters also disapproved of President Roosevelt's attempt to tamper with the Supreme Court. Accordingly, in the 1938 off-year election, the Democratic membership in the House of Representatives dropped from 333 to 262. This loss of 71 seats was a crushing blow for "new dealism" or "liberalism." It was then that the present-day coalition really began to rule Congress.

Significantly, in the presidential-election year of 1940—due to the continued rise of the conservative trend—the Democratic strength in the House increased by only five seats to a total of 267. The Democrats didn't achieve that height again for 18 years. It was just four years ago that the discontent of the voters over the 1957 economic recession enabled the Democrats to move their membership in the House up to 283.

So, with the exception of the 1958 election, the Democratic Party has not since gone beyond the 267 figure it obtained in 1940.

But, to be realistic, it is necessary to subtract from every one of these Democratic majorities since 1938 anywhere from 95 to 106 Democratic votes from the southern states. There are now 11 Republican members of the House from the South.

The United States maintains, therefore, a conservative legislative body, and all the talk about how a few so-called "liberals" here and there now can put through really radical legislation is not persuasive. When the chips are down and some crucial measure likely to affect the economic situation adversely is proposed by the Administration, even many of these "liberals" will run to cover by failing to vote.

Off-year elections are usually interpreted by the partisans to suit their own wishes. Thus, the Democratic strategy today seems to be to emphasize the results of last week as a "Kennedy victory" because the Administration didn't lose as many seats as incumbent administrations have lost before in off-year elections. The truth probably is that the economic situation in general is about the same as it was at the time of the 1960 election and that, if the Cuban situation had not stirred many voters to go to the polls, the Democratic Party might have sustained bigger losses in the House of Representatives.

About all the Congressional election of 1962 can be interpreted to mean is that the two parties retain relatively the same strength as they had two years ago, and that the nation will really see a battle between them in 1964, with the outcome largely dependent on whether the country is in a recession or moving up to a better economic level than prevails today.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

TV POLL-TAKER — The White House took a highly unusual step to ascertain public reaction to President Kennedy's Cuban crisis TV announcement. A professional poll-taker, Louis Harris, was hired to make a hasty telephone check of public reaction immediately following the address.

Harris' surveyors asked four questions: Did you hear the President? Do you agree or disagree? What was his main point? Where will it all lead?

As word of the poll spread around Washington and the nation, one immediate question, particularly among politically oriented persons is what motivated the White House to hire a poll-taker, and why did it want to know so quickly the public reaction?

There is a suspicion that the White House need to know was based more on political considerations than international developments. One can only wonder whether the White House had contingent plans in the event his quarantine announcement received a cool reception instead of the extremely warm one it got among Americans.

In Washington as elsewhere in the country, debate and discussion continues on whether the Kennedy announcement was timed to events in Cuba or political developments at home with some Republicans emphatically taking the latter view. Most Democrats respond with varying degrees of indignation that any president should be charged with jeopardizing national survival for partisan political gain, and this argument is apt to grow hotter as details of the events get blurred by the passage of time.

"Mr. Archie," she said. "I missed you. Have you been on vacation?" He nodded. "Sort of," he said diffidently. "I spent a little time home."

Mr. Archie was lying, in a way. He had been home, to be sure, but not on vacation. He had been fired from one of the finest jewelry stores on Fifth Avenue as a thief. After 22 years of service, it was a disaster of the first magnitude. Now, a month later, he was back in the same store.

The store was burglar-proof. It had all kinds of locks, automatic alarms, a private detective agency, door guards and a quiet man on a mezzanine who did nothing but look down at the jewelry counters all day. The burglaries were strange. Only small rings were taken; only small uncut gems, or brooches.

All came from the same drum-shaped glass counter. It stood in an aisle next to Mr. Archie's counter. The lock was in the bottom of the drum. There were two keys. Mr. Archie had one. The store manager had the other. There were three thefts in seven months. At no time was the glass broken; at no time was the lock forced.

The store is one of the most renowned. It had private detectives and insurance detectives shadow every employee. Interest focused more and more on Mr. Archie. He was 53, a widower who lived with two grown daughters in Queens. He had a small car, a small house with a mortgage, and no known hobbies.

One Saturday the detectives found his hobby. He had a middle-aged girl friend in Coney Island. Mr. Archie, it was learned, had leased the apartment under "Mr. and Mrs." The shadowers found that he and his lady friend spent weekends together. She played the piano and he sat with his shoes off sipping martinis. On Sundays, they had dinner in an expensive restaurant, and then he went back to his daughters. The seamy side of his life was impossible at $150 salary per week.

No one had absolute proof against Mr. Archie. But the manager called him in, accused him, and fired the man. At this time, the New York City Police Department moved into the case. They sent Detective First Grade Edward Clancy to the store. Clancy works out of the East 51st St. Precinct.

He too had been a widower for a long time. Last Spring, he married a tall attractive woman. He started work on the case feeling that Mr. Archie wasn't guilty.

Clancy is a stocky man with a wise grin and he listened to the private dicks say "The case is closed," and he said it wasn't.

"The whole thing looks so much like an inside job," he said, "and it points so directly to Mr. Archie that it sort of smells a little." He worked on the case, and he worked on others. He bagged a burglar who walked into an East Side flat as Clancy watched and, when he walked out with two valises, looking for a cab, Clancy opened the door of his car and said: "Taxi?"

One day he arrested Bella, an old-time thief. She walked out of a silversmith store in a mink coat and Clancy, who happened to be cruising by, thought she had picked up 30 pounds. He stopped her and made her open the fur coat. He was wrong. She had lost 50 pounds, but she had a solid silver coffee serving set, including tray, attached to hooks inside the coat.

"Bella," he said in mock shock, "if you ever fell overboard, you'd drown." Once she was caught, Bella always reacted in the same way. She had to find a way of softening the sentence. She told Clancy where he could find some counterfeiters who were running off $20 bills and dipping them in coffee to age them overnight. She gave him a good tip on narcotics. Clancy thanked her and asked her casually if she ever worked a certain jewelry store on Fifth Ave. Bella said no. Then maybe. Then perhaps. Clancy said he might talk some sweet talk to the D.A. if Bella could help him on the jewelry store.

One afternoon Detective Clancy stood in the store chatting with the manager. His eye was on a woman in mink. The coat was open and she leaned over a drum-shaped jewelry counter. When she straightened up, Clancy called her over and introduced her to the manager. "Open your coat, Bella," he said. The lady did.

Rings and brooches were festooned on the lining like ornaments on a Christmas tree. The manager almost fainted. Bella handed him the key she had made for the counter lock from a piece of wax. In a week, Mr. Archie was back at work. He had been afraid, it seems, to ask his daughters if it was all right to remarry.

Now he has asked. Ironically, the manager insists on giving the wedding ring as a gift. Bella, who rated 20 years, got 5-to-10. The bride-to-be, it develops, owns apartment houses. Mr. Archie is back behind the counter because a man named Clancy put him there. . . .

Hormones For Cancer Results Miraculous

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Thousands of men have lived 10 or more years with cancer of the prostate. They take hormones that do not cure but keep malignant cells in abeyance. These men remain comfortable and are able to continue working and many live out their life expectancy or die of something else. This plan is followed, provided the disease cannot be eliminated by surgery or X-ray.

The prostate is under hormonal control and cancer cells originating in this organ are affected profoundly by certain glandular secretions. Their growth is suppressed by female hormones and stimulated by male sex hormones. When the use of female hormones is not enough to stop growth, the surgeon recommends castration to prevent the manufacture of testosterone. Now and then it also is necessary to remove other endocrine glands, such as the pituitary and adrenals, that stimplate or govern the reproductive system.

Many of these men have been snatched from the jaws of death subsequent to these operations and the use of female sex hormones. Pain disappears, appetite returns, and weight and strength increase. The results are miraculous but should not be misconstrued as curative. Eventually the hormones lose their effect and symptoms return. But, by that time, many of the victims have lived their normal life expectancy.

A corresponding situation exists among women with incurable breast cancer. They improve after the use of male sex hormones, plus the removal of the ovaries and or other endocrine glands.

Many promising chemical developments are available in the treatment of other malignancies. the anti-meatbolites, such as aminopterin and methotrexate by starving the cancer cells. Nitrogen mustard, chlorambucil, TEM, and myleran are alkylating agents that destroy cancer cells. Actinomycins also are outstanding among anti-tumor compounds.

Various other drugs are on trial and an antidote or cure is bound to follow as we learn more about the growth and development of the cancer cell. Numerous authorities believe the solution to the problem will be found in a chemical remedy.

TOMORROW: New instrument and test.

William Slim, once an elementary school teacher in Britain, is now Field Marshall the Viscount Slim, and the manner in which he achieved his meteoric rise is detailed in his book "Unofficial History."

Lord Slim begins his tale with a notable commentary on human nature: "there is nothing like seeing the other fellow run to bring back your courage." Once he stood behind a low wall with a captured Italian officer when bombs began falling all around. Slim tells, "At each burst the Italian, with his arms still above his head, and I with my revolver still pointing at his belt buckle, in perfect unison, flexed our knees, and sank below the wall to rise again just in time to duck once more. We must have looked remarkably silly."

Bernie Hart remembers a time when he was coaching a beautiful Hollywood star for her first role in a Broadway play. She was notoriously bad study, and Hart had a very hard time getting her ready for the opening in Boston. Two days before zero hour the worried producer called Hart and said, "Well, has she learned her lines yet?" Hart replied cheerfully, "Boss, she's letter perfect." There was a moment's pause and then he added, "That is, she's learned one letter."

Nationalization In Quebec

"Socialism" is not quite the scare word in Canada that it is in the United States. In fact the people of Quebec province are expected to give a resounding vote of confidence today to the Liberal Party government that proposes to nationalize 11 of the province's biggest privately-owned utility companies.

Premier Jean Lesage announced last September he was taking the issue to the voters in a general election. He said that because of the magnitude and complexity of such a takeover, "we think we should not proceed further without seeking a specific mandate."

The opposition National Union Party seems to be telling the voters that if the electric companies are to be put under public ownership, it —and not the Liberal government—is the best bunch to entrust with the job. National Union leaders have attacked the nationalization proposal obliquely, though, by alleging that a large American firm recently dropped a plan to build a multi-million-dollar paper mill in the province when the company learned the Liberals were "flirting with socialism."

But electric power has been publicly owned in Saskatchewan for some years under the province's Cooperative Commonwealth Federation (Labor Party). Some electric power is publicly owned in Ontario province, where the Conservatives hold control. Nationalization of power in British Columbia is far advanced under the Social Credit Party which, ironically enough, has been considered Canada's strongest bulwark against socialism. Americans who are of a mind to fault Quebec for its decision might want to ponder this fact: In the United States today 24 per cent of electric energy production is publicly owned, compared with only 5 per cent 30 years ago.

The Pollsters Are Annoyed

I have a letter signed by Richard W. Oudersluys, President of Market-Opinion Research Company of Detroit, Michigan, in which he says:

"Your article 'One Man's Reply to Phone Survey,' published this week-end, was one of the most insulting attacks on a highly respected profession I have ever read. You have probably alienated thousands of men and women who are engaged in this work, many more who use it and the still more thousands of marketing students and their professors.

"One of the workers in our office suggested we hang your picture in our lobby, so that when any one of us passes it we can stick a pin in it or throw a handy dart at it."

I did not know that his was a "highly respected profession." I know, of course, that medicine, law, the clergy, teaching and other skills, requiring long years of study and training, are professions. I should imagine that his enterprise of interrupting persons at lunch is a semi-skilled industry involving only a rudimentary knowledge of the vernacular. "Madam, does your washer get clogged up?"

I am sorry that I have alienated thousands of men and women engaged in this work. If I worried about whom I alienated, I should have nothing else to do, because the truth always alienates somebody. Also, Oudersluys attempts to frighten me that there are thousands of marketing students and their professors. I suppose that every time I attack the use of heroin in this country, I should worry about what the thousands of users and pushers and their bankers think about me.

But to be serious about this thing, if one can be, on a very busy day, a young lady was called on the telephone by one of these pollsters and asked whether she had recently got any new electrical equipment. She replied, "Yes," whereupon a long list of such equipment was read to her, including electric irons, television, hi-fi, and all sorts of things. "Yes," she replied, "I recently got all of these except the washing machine."

"What did your television cost you, for instance?" (Meanwhile the stew began to burn.)

"Oh!" said the young thing, "about $801.30."

This knocked the pollster over.

"You didn't buy it in a discount house?"

"No!" she replied, and named the most expensive store for such doo-dads in New York.

The pollster could hardly believe her ears.

"What does your husband earn a month?" the pollster asked.

"$83.50 a month—he's a soldier."

The pollster must imagine that the young voice was either a liar or a multimillionaire. The truth is that she is a young bride and got a lot of wedding presents, some of which, as such things go at this early stage in life, are not usable.

She was also asked how many hours of leisure she had—to which she replied, "None." And then the busybody inquired as to her husband's education. No questions were asked about her sex life, or whether she hated her father and mother and therefore lived alone, or why girls left home.

The young one's indignation ran high because the stew was burned. When she told me the story, I asked her whether she thought answering a pollster was worth a well-thought-out stew with tarragon and red wine yet. Why did she not tell the gossip to mind her own business?

These pollsters have become a pest. They disturb one at lunch and dinner. They interfere when one is reading a book or even having a pleasant talk with his wife, or even an unpleasant one. They clutter the mail with questionnaires.

Apparently Oudersluys's point is that one must answer these questions to keep these marketeers at work. That may be a good reason. However, they can join the Navy and see the world; New York City is short of policemen and if they have the qualifications, they can get a job there—be pensioned-off after 20 years of service and encouraged to be idle forever after. The world is full of jobs for men of capacity and initiative.

But if one prefers to be a pollster by telephone, well and good. But do not expect courtesy or even an honest answer. There must be a more decent way to get this information.

Kennedy And Khrushchev May Be On Verge Of Better Understanding

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Delicate diplomatic negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union right now could pave the way for a major break-through for better understanding.

That is the opinion of diplomats close to the present talks on Cuba, some of whom believe that the USA and USSR could conceivably get back to the understanding which existed during their wartime alliance.

On the other hand, reapprochement could be upset by a shift of policy in the Kremlin, or by an upset in some of the delicate negotiations now taking place regarding the removal of offensive weapons from Cuba. The Soviet bombers, given to Castro, are a case in point. While they are old, and sitting ducks for any bomber attack from the United States, they have become a political issue because of criticism from Kennedy's enemies. And he insists on their removal.

Otherwise, however, the Administration believes that the good faith shown by Khrushchev in immediately removing the 42 medium range missiles from Cuba far outweighs the pin-pricks and irritants caused in large part by Fidel Castro. In fact, the boorish behavior of the bearded Cuban is reliably reported to have got on Russian nerves to such an extent that they are quite sympathetic with American problems regarding Castro.

Meanwhile, here are some of the long-range developments, considered far more important than the Castro irritations, which could pave the way for better understanding:

The Chinese-Indian War—This is a major problem for Khrushchev and could become one for President Kennedy. Their interests are essentially the same—namely, not permitting the two most populous countries in the world, with one-third of the world's population, to become embroiled in a major war.

For Khrushchev the problem is even more acute because he is torn between a Communist ally, China, and a neutral friend with which he has extremely close relations, India.

It may happen that Kennedy and Khrushchev may have to join in bringing combined, powerful pressure to stop the dangerous Chinese-Indian conflict.

Chinese Criticism of Khrushchev—The Chinese-Soviet rift led to the withdrawal last year of all Soviet technicians and aid. Several trainloads of experts with their equipment steamed back across the Trans-Siberian Railway.

But now the rift has become such that the People's World, official organ of the Chinese Communist Party, refers to Khrushchev's missile withdrawal from Cuba as "Munich appeasement" and the proposed UN inspection of the missile bases as "a serious violation of Cuba's sovereignty."

And in Bulgaria, Chinese Delegate Wu Hsiu-Chuan told the Bulgarian Communist Congress in a fiery speech that China would give aid to Cuba if the Russians withdrew.

Deflation of Castro—The Cuban crisis has had the effect not only of making the Russians fed up with Castro, but making Castro fed up with the Russians, plus a general conclusion all around Latin America, including even Mexico, that Castro is more of a buffoon than a champion of the people.

The solution which more and more Latins lean toward is the Brazilian proposal of a nuclear free zone in Latin America. The Russians have already bought this, in effect, by withdrawing their missiles from Cuba. The United States would buy it, if it did not bar the transportation of weapons across the Caribbean to the Panama Canal. And all Latin nations would welcome it with the possible exception of Castro.

Reason Over Berlin—The more reasonable men around Chancellor Adenauer are now discussing formulas for Berlin which will go a long way toward a solution of this most dangerous spot in Europe. It will be discussed with Adenauer at the White House this week.

Meanwhile, it's significant that neither Khrushchev nor other Russian leaders have issued any ultimatums regarding Berlin. Deputy Premier Alexei Kosygin, an industrial expert of the new Soviet school, gave a moderate speech on the 45th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, without sabre-rattling and no deadline for a settlement of Berlin.

Finally the USA and USSR are very close to agreement regarding a ban on nuclear testing. The United States has stopped testing. Russia will stop on November 20. It may well be that an agreement will be signed before the end of the year.

All these add up to the possibility of far greater achievements than Kennedy's so-called surrender of the right to invade Cuba or the right of on-site UN inspection of Cuban missile bases. They could point to very material and important gains for peace.

Demo House Strength Weaker Than In 1958

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—Quite a lot of publicity was given last week to the fact that the Democrats lost fewer seats in the House of Representatives than either party in power has sustained in an off-year election since 1934. But nobody seems to have pointed out that the Democrats in Congress are weaker in strength today than they were after the off-year election only four years ago. For in 1958 they achieved a membership of 283 as against their 259 this past week.

Nobody seems to have pointed out also that no Democratic president since the 1930's—when the Democrats elected 322 members in the House in 1934 and 333 members in 1936—has had anywhere near these totals in either a presidential or an off-year election.

The fact stands out that, were it not for the help of its conservative wing in the South, the Democratic Party today would be a minority party.

Thus, there are, for instance, 95 Democrats in the House of Representatives from the 11 states of the South and without these votes in the new Congress which assembles in January the Democrats would have only 164 seats as contrasted with the 176 held by the Republicans.

Since most of the Republicans are conservatives, this means that the conservative coalition of Republicans and Democrats in the House of Representatives retains a substantial majority—just as effective as the coalition majorities which have prevailed since 1938.

But, inasmuch as the 1934 election has received so much attention as a basis for comparison, it is interesting to note that after the bank holiday and deep depression of 1933, the election of 1933 furnished the first opportuntiy for the voters to express themselves on that issue. They were not only showing their resentment against the Republican Party for allegedly having brought on the economic debacle, but they were impressed by the efforts made by the Roosevelt Administration to bring recovery. That's why in the 1936 election the Democratic Party actually increased its seats in the House of Representatives from 322 in 1934 to 333 in 1936.

But two years later the turn came. The people became impatient over the failure of the New Deal to wipe out unemployment. Large numbers of voters also disapproved of President Roosevelt's attempt to tamper with the Supreme Court. Accordingly, in the 1938 off-year election, the Democratic membership in the House of Representatives dropped from 333 to 262. This loss of 71 seats was a crushing blow for "new dealism" or "liberalism." It was then that the present-day coalition really began to rule Congress.

Significantly, in the presidential-election year of 1940—due to the continued rise of the conservative trend—the Democratic strength in the House increased by only five seats to a total of 267. The Democrats didn't achieve that height again for 18 years. It was just four years ago that the discontent of the voters over the 1957 economic recession enabled the Democrats to move their membership in the House up to 283.

So, with the exception of the 1958 election, the Democratic Party has not since gone beyond the 267 figure it obtained in 1940.

But, to be realistic, it is necessary to subtract from every one of these Democratic majorities since 1938 anywhere from 95 to 106 Democratic votes from the southern states. There are now 11 Republican members of the House from the South.

The United States maintains, therefore, a conservative legislative body, and all the talk about how a few so-called "liberals" here and there now can put through really radical legislation is not persuasive. When the chips are down and some crucial measure likely to affect the economic situation adversely is proposed by the Administration, even many of these "liberals" will run to cover by failing to vote.

Off-year elections are usually interpreted by the partisans to suit their own wishes. Thus, the Democratic strategy today seems to be to emphasize the results of last week as a "Kennedy victory" because the Administration didn't lose as many seats as incumbent administrations have lost before in off-year elections. The truth probably is that the economic situation in general is about the same as it was at the time of the 1960 election and that, if the Cuban situation had not stirred many voters to go to the polls, the Democratic Party might have sustained bigger losses in the House of Representatives.

About all the Congressional election of 1962 can be interpreted to mean is that the two parties retain relatively the same strength as they had two years ago, and that the nation will really see a battle between them in 1964, with the outcome largely dependent on whether the country is in a recession or moving up to a better economic level than prevails today.

Their growth is suppressed by female hormones and stimulated by male sex hormones. When the use of female hormones is not enough to stop growth, the surgeon recommends castration to prevent the manufacture of testosterone. Now and then it also is necessary to remove other endocrine glands, such as the pituitary and adrenals, that stimplate or govern the reproductive system.

Many of these men have been snatched from the jaws of death subsequent to these operations and the use of female sex hormones. Pain disappears, appetite returns, and weight and strength increase. The results are miraculous but should not be misconstrued as curative. Eventually the hormones lose their effect and symptoms return. But, by that time, many of the victims have lived their normal life expectancy.

A corresponding situation exists among women with incurable breast cancer. They improve after the use of male sex hormones, plus the removal of the ovaries and or other endocrine glands.

Many promising chemical developments are available in the treatment of other malignancies. the anti-meatbolites, such as aminopterin and methotrexate by starving the cancer cells. Nitrogen mustard, chlorambucil, TEM, and myleran are alkylating agents that destroy cancer cells. Actinomycins also are outstanding among anti-tumor cornpounds.

Various other drugs are on trial and an antidote or cure is bound to follow as we learn more about the growth and development of the cancer cell. Numerous authorities believe the solution to the problem will be found in a chemical remedy.

TOMORROW: New instrument and test.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

William Slim, once an elementary school teacher in Britain, is now Field Marshall the Viscount Slim, and the manner in which he achieved his meteoric rise is detailed in his book "Unofficial History."

Lord Slim begins his tale with a notable commentary on human nature: "there is nothing like seeing the other fellow run to bring back your courage." Once he stood behind a low wall with a captured Italian officer when bombs began falling all around. Slim tells, "At each burst the Italian, with his arms still above his head, and I with my revolver still pointing at his belt buckle, in perfect unison, flexed our knees, and sank below the wall to rise again just in time to duck once more. We must have looked remarkably silly."

Bernie Hart remembers a time when he was coaching a beautiful Hollywood star for her first role in a Broadway play. She was notoriously bad study, and Hart had a very hard time getting her ready for the opening in Boston. Two days before zero hour the worried producer called Hart and said, "Well, has she learned her lines yet?" Hart replied cheerfully, "Boss, she's letter perfect." There was a moment's pause and then he added, "That is, she's learned one letter."

Novarro, Former Terp, Is Named Williams Coach

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (UPI) — Frank R. Navarro, a top defensive coach, has succeeded retiring Williams College head football coach Len Watters.

Watters, 65, will retire next June after 15 years as head coach of the Ephmen. Under his guidance, they won 68 games, lost 46 and tied 4.

The 32-year-old Navarro, who starred as a guard at the University of Maryland, came to Williams in 1956 as head freshman football coach. He moved up to the varsity the next year.

Steve Has Triple

CHERRY HILL, N. J. (UPI) — Steve Brooks celebrated his election into the Jockey's Hall of Fame Tuesday by riding three winners at Garden State Park.

The 41-year-old Brooks, who has ridden more than 3,900 winners in his career, scored on Yankee Relic ($3.60) in the first race, Alibhai Flower ($5.00) in the fourth and Squirrel Hill ($4.60) in the sixth.

AAU, NCAA Reach Agreement, Coalition Group Is Formed

Proposal Subject To Ratification By All Organizations

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The AAU and NCAA settled—at least temporarily—their 2½-year war for control of track and field in the United States Tuesday by forming a coalition group.

Warring groups reached their agreement after three hours of negotiating Tuesday following a marathon 13-hour session Monday at which they were urged by Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy to settle their differences for the sake of the United States Olympic team in 1964.

"Preliminary agreement has been reached by the parties involved to get up a track and field coalition embracing all qualified organizations," said U.S. Olympic Committee President Tug Wilson in a formal statement following the meeting.

Must Be Ratified

"The proposal is subject to ratification by the organizations involved. All these organizations will proceed with their programs which will be coordinated under the proposed coalition.

"Details are to be worked out later."

The meeting was held behind closed doors and the statement still left unanswered the question of dual sanctions, the main point in the feud. The AAU has maintained that as the governing body of track and field in the United States, it alone had the authority to sanction open track meets. The International Amateur Athletic Federation backed the AAU on this.

The NCAA-sponsored U.S. Track and Field Federation, however, claimed it too could sanction open meets.

Asked if this meant either group was giving way, NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers snapped:

"That's all I can tell you."

Presumably, however, the AAU will sanction Federation meets. And the Federation in turn will withdraw its threat to keep all collegians from participating in AAU-sponsored events.

The AAU would remain the sanctioning agent.

Nothing was said or discussed concerning basketball and gymnastics, two other sports involving the AAU-NCAA squabble. However, one high ranking official said that the track and field pattern probably would be applied to the two other sports.

Both the AAU and the NCAA still must obtain the ratification of their member organizations or institutions. The AAU probably will decide at its annual meeting Nov. 29-Dec. 2 at Detroit. The NCAA is expected to take a mail vote of its members. However, it is a foregone conclusion that there will be no difficulty.

Likewise, the coalition has evaporated the threat of any difficulty concerning the 1963 indoor track season. The federation had been threatening to conduct meets in direct conflict with the established AAU-okayed invitation meets around the country.

Feuding Since 1959

The meeting was called by the Olympic committee in a last-ditch effort to settle the feud which had been simmering since 1959. All that time the NCAA had maintained it had not been given the proper voice in the conduct of track and field even though it supplied most of the facilities and participants.

Archie Moore In Top Shape For Clay Bout

To Scale About 196 For Thursday Scrap

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Archie Moore's weight, like his age, is a private matter with the old Mongoose, and both are relative.

But Moore, whose age ranges upward from 45, assured his followers Tuesday that he will be in top shape and quite capable of disposing of young Cassius Clay in their 12-round heavyweight fight Thursday niht.

Jack (Doc) Kearns, Moore's advisor, predicted Moore would enter the ring at the Sports Arena at around 196 pounds.

Clay, the windy one from Louisville, Ky., at 20 is a superb physical specimen and still growing. He and his trainer, Angelo Dundee, figure he'll tip the scales at 200, possibly a pound or so over.

"Makes no difference," said Clay. "I'll still have my speed and my footwork. That old man will never catch me."

There will be closed-circuit theater showings of the match in a number of cities, but no radio broadcast.

Celtics Top New York

Six of the eight Boston players scored in double figures, led by Tommy Heinsohn with 26 points. Guerin paced the New Yorkers with 23 points.

Tom Stith, making his first appearance with the Knicks after recovering from tuberculosis, scored four points in 10 minutes of action.

the GREAT PLAY in College Football

Ed Tunnicliff

IT WASN'T the longest run in Northwestern football history, but certainly the 45 yard dash of Ed Tunnicliff for the winning touchdown in the 20-to-13 victory over California in the 1949 Rose Bowl game will rank for a long time as "The Great Play" in Wildcat gridiron annals.

The run, coming in the final minutes of a brilliant see-saw battle, had all the ingredients of the "stranger than fiction" thriller.

The game itself had a pupil-versus-teacher angle. Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf, the California coach, had been head coach of Northwestern when Bob Voigts, the Wildcat coach, was a player. In fact, Voigts succeeded Waldorf as head coach when the latter went to California.

NORTHWESTERN got off to an early first quarter lead when Frank Aschenbrenner raced 73 yards for a touchdown, a run which stood for years as the longest run from scrimmage in Rose Bowl history.

California bounced back on the next play after the kickoff to tie the score when Jackie Jensen, California's great all-American halfback, ran 63 yards for a touchdown.

Each team scored another touchdown after that, but Northwestern missed an extra point to trail 14-to-13 with time running out.

The Wildcats started a drive from their 12 yard line with eight minutes left to play. In a series of short gainers Northwestern worked the ball to the California 45-yard line to set the stage for Tunnicliff's climactic play.

The play called for the 155-back to take a direct pass from center (the only time in the game that the quarterback did not handle the ball) and swing around his right end.

As the California defense was maneuvered out of position, Tunnicliff, aided by several timely blocks, went all the way for the winning score.

'Husker Fans Buy $200,000 Insurance To Keep Devaney

Alumni And Friends Of The University Will Pay Premiums

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska football followers, in a move designed to make head coach Bob Devaney's job more attractive, have undertaken to pay for a $200,000 insurance policy for the coach, it was disclosed Tuesday.

Premiums will be paid by alumni and friends of the university.

The yearly premium on the 20-year policy approximates $9,000 per year. Devaney's regular salary is $17,000 per year.

Terms of the policy have the effect of making the policy more valuable to Devaney the longer he stays at Nebraska.

Devaney came to Nebraska this year from Wyoming and has achieved what some sports writers have termed a "minor miracle" in posting a 7-win, 1-loss record to date. The Cornhuskers, beaten only by Missouri, remain in contention for the Big Eight title.

A native of Michigan and former assistant coach at Michigan State, Devaney has been mentioned in speculation over head coaching jobs in Big Ten Conference schools.

Terms of the insurance policy gift are written into an 18-page document. Principal provisos:

If, at the date of his death, Devaney is still head football coach at Nebraska, the entire amount of the policy goes into a trust fund for his family.

If the university terminates Devaney's employment as head football coach by either demoting or promoting him, or if he reaches retirement age at the university, or if funds cannot be raised to pay the premiums, the trustees will convert the policy to paid up insurance.

If Devaney should leave Nebraska on his own volition prior to 1968, then trustees would cash in the policy and Devaney would get nothing.

Dapper Dans Will Hold Social For Managers Tonight

The Dapper Dan Club will hold its annual social affair for the Little League managers today at 8 p.m. in the Moose Home.

All sixteen managers and their assistants have been invited in addition to several other special guests who worked with the League during the season.

The program will begin with the showing of two baseball movies secured from the major league film service and are entitled "Baseball's Hall of Fame" and "20 Years of Baseball." The chicken feed will follow and has been prepared by Mrs. Trozzo.

All managers are reminded to turn in their uniforms and equipment, if they have not already done so.

THE Cleveland Indians drew more fans on the road than at home in 1962. Home attendance was 716,076. On the road they drew 1,116,726.

AAU, NCAA Reach Agreement, Coalition Group Is Formed

Proposal Subject To Ratification By All Organizations

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The AAU and NCAA settled—at least temporarily—their 2½-year war for control of track and field in the United States Tuesday by forming a coalition group.

Warring groups reached their agreement after three hours of negotiating Tuesday following a marathon 13-hour session Monday at which they were urged by Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy to settle their differences for the sake of the United States Olympic team in 1964.

"Preliminary agreement has been reached by the parties involved to get up a track and field coalition embracing all qualified organizations," said U.S. Olympic Committee President Tug Wilson in a formal statement following the meeting.

Must Be Ratified

"The proposal is subject to ratification by the organizations involved. All these organizations will proceed with their programs which will be coordinated under the proposed coalition.

"Details are to be worked out later."

The meeting was held behind closed doors and the statement still left unanswered the question of dual sanctions, the main point in the feud. The AAU has maintained that as the governing body of track and field in the United States, it alone had the authority to sanction open track meets. The International Amateur Athletic Federation backed the AAU on this.

The NCAA-sponsored U.S. Track and Field Federation, however, claimed it too could sanction open meets.

Asked if this meant either group was giving way, NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers snapped:

"That's all I can tell you."

Presumably, however, the AAU will sanction Federation meets. And the Federation in turn will withdraw its threat to keep all collegians from participating in AAU-sponsored events.

The AAU would remain the sanctioning agent.

Nothing was said or discussed concerning basketball and gymnastics, two other sports involving the AAU-NCAA squabble. However, one high ranking official said that the track and field pattern probably would be applied to the two other sports.

Both the AAU and the NCAA still must obtain the ratification of their member organizations or institutions. The AAU probably will decide at its annual meeting Nov. 29-Dec. 2 at Detroit. The NCAA is expected to take a mail vote of its members. However, it is a foregone conclusion that there will be no difficulty.

Likewise, the coalition has evaporated the threat of any difficulty concerning the 1963 indoor track season. The federation had been threatening to conduct meets in direct conflict with the established AAU-okayed invitation meets around the country.

Feuding Since 1959

The meeting was called by the Olympic committee in a last-ditch effort to settle the feud which had been simmering since 1959. All that time the NCAA had maintained it had not been given the proper voice in the conduct of track and field even though it supplied most of the facilities and participants.

Archie Moore In Top Shape For Clay Bout

To Scale About 196 For Thursday Scrap

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Archie Moore's weight, like his age, is a private matter with the old Mongoose, and both are relative.

But Moore, whose age ranges upward from 45, assured his followers Tuesday that he will be in top shape and quite capable of disposing of young Cassius Clay in their 12-round heavyweight fight Thursday niht.

Jack (Doc) Kearns, Moore's advisor, predicted Moore would enter the ring at the Sports Arena at around 196 pounds.

Clay, the windy one from Louisville, Ky., at 20 is a superb physical specimen and still growing. He and his trainer, Angelo Dundee, figure he'll tip the scales at 200, possibly a pound or so over.

"Makes no difference," said Clay. "I'll still have my speed and my footwork. That old man will never catch me."

There will be closed-circuit theater showings of the match in a number of cities, but no radio broadcast.

Six of the eight Boston players scored in double figures, led by Tommy Heinsohn with 26 points. Guerin paced the New Yorkers with 23 points.

Tom Stith, making his first appearance with the Knicks after recovering from tuberculosis, scored four points in 10 minutes of action.

Novarro, Former Terp, Is Named Williams Coach

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (UPI) — Frank R. Navarro, a top defensive coach, has succeeded retiring Williams College head football coach Len Watters.

Watters, 65, will retire next June after 15 years as head coach of the Ephmen. Under his guidance, they won 68 games, lost 46 and tied 4.

The 32-year-old Navarro, who starred as a guard at the University of Maryland, came to Williams in 1956 as head freshman football coach. He moved up to the varsity the next year.

Steve Has Triple

CHERRY HILL, N. J. (UPI) — Steve Brooks celebrated his election into the Jockey's Hall of Fame Tuesday by riding three winners at Garden State Park.

The 41-year-old Brooks, who has ridden more than 3,900 winners in his career, scored on Yankee Relic ($3.60) in the first race, Alibhai Flower ($5.00) in the fourth and Squirrel Hill ($4.60) in the sixth.

the GREAT PLAY in College Football

Ed Tunnicliff

IT WASN'T the longest run in Northwestern football history, but certainly the 45 yard dash of Ed Tunnicliff for the winning touchdown in the 20-to-13 victory over California in the 1949 Rose Bowl game will rank for a long time as "The Great Play" in Wildcat gridiron annals.

The run, coming in the final minutes of a brilliant see-saw battle, had all the ingredients of the "stranger than fiction" thriller.

The game itself had a pupil-versus-teacher angle. Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf, the California coach, had been head coach of Northwestern when Bob Voigts, the Wildcat coach, was a player. In fact, Voigts succeeded Waldorf as head coach when the latter went to California.

NORTHWESTERN got off to an early first quarter lead when Frank Aschenbrenner raced 73 yards for a touchdown, a run which stood for years as the longest run from scrimmage in Rose Bowl history.

California bounced back on the next play after the kickoff to tie the score when Jackie Jensen, California's great all-American halfback, ran 63 yards for a touchdown.

Each team scored another touchdown after that, but Northwestern missed an extra point to trail 14-to-13 with time running out.

The Wildcats started a drive from their 12 yard line with eight minutes left to play. In a series of short gainers Northwestern worked the ball to the California 45-yard line to set the stage for Tunnicliff's climactic play.

The play called for the 155-back to take a direct pass from center (the only time in the game that the quarterback did not handle the ball) and swing around his right end.

As the California defense was maneuvered out of position, Tunnicliff, aided by several timely blocks, went all the way for the winning score.

Chicago Bears Join Players Association

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Bears football players Tuesday voted to join the National Football League Players Association, the last team to affiliate with the group.

The affiliation of the Bears players with the association does not change their benefits in any way. All have been covered by the league pension plan, life and medical insurance plans, the minimum salary rule and other phases of the association's agreement with the league.

'Husker Fans Buy $200,000 Insurance To Keep Devaney

Alumni And Friends Of The University Will Pay Premiums

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska football followers, in a move designed to make head coach Bob Devaney's job more attractive, have undertaken to pay for a $200,000 insurance policy for the coach, it was disclosed Tuesday.

Premiums will be paid by alumni and friends of the university.

The yearly premium on the 20-year policy approximates $9,000 per year. Devaney's regular salary is $17,000 per year.

Terms of the policy have the effect of making the policy more valuable to Devaney the longer he stays at Nebraska.

Devaney came to Nebraska this year from Wyoming and has achieved what some sports writers have termed a "minor miracle" in posting a 7-win, 1-loss record to date. The Cornhuskers, beaten only by Missouri, remain in contention for the Big Eight title.

A native of Michigan and former assistant coach at Michigan State, Devaney has been mentioned in speculation over head coaching jobs in Big Ten Conference schools.

Terms of the insurance policy gift are written into an 18-page document. Principal provisos:

If, at the date of his death, Devaney is still head football coach at Nebraska, the entire amount of the policy goes into a trust fund for his family.

If the university terminates Devaney's employment as head football coach by either demoting or promoting him, or if he reaches retirement age at the university, or if funds cannot be raised to pay the premiums, the trustees will convert the policy to paid up insurance.

If Devaney should leave Nebraska on his own volition prior to 1968, then trustees would cash in the policy and Devaney would get nothing.

Dapper Dans Will Hold Social For Managers Tonight

The Dapper Dan Club will hold its annual social affair for the Little League managers today at 8 p.m. in the Moose Home.

All sixteen managers and their assistants have been invited in addition to several other special guests who worked with the League during the season.

The program will begin with the showing of two baseball movies secured from the major league film service and are entitled "Baseball's Hall of Fame" and "20 Years of Baseball." The chicken feed will follow and has been prepared by Mrs. Trozzo.

All managers are reminded to turn in their uniforms and equipment, if they have not already done so.

THE Cleveland Indians drew more fans on the road than at home in 1962. Home attendance was 716,076. On the road they drew 1,116,726.

Britisher Hits $419,483 Jackpot In Soccer Pool

LONDON (AP)—Gordon Foster, 36-year-old locomotive driver, learned Tuesday night he had won $419,483 for two cents on a soccer pool.

It was the biggest pools win of the British soccer season.

Foster picked eight of last Saturday's British League games to end in draws, and his predictions all came right.

Foster, who lives with his wife and 10-year-old daughter in a railway employe's cottage beside Rainford Junction in Northern England, said:

LONDON (AP)—Terry Downes, British middleweight champion, defeated Phil Moyer of Portland, Ore., on a technical knockout in the ninth round Tuesday night.

Referee Jack Hart stopped the fight after 30 seconds of the ninth round of the scheduled 10-rounder when blood flowed from a cut over Moyer's right eye—an injury he suffered in the seventh round.

Downes weighed 164¾, Moyer 165.

A sellout crowd of 14,000 at London's Wembley Indoor Stadium paid an estimated $70,000 to watch the fight. Downes was reported receiving $20,000 and Moyer $12,000.

Downes, a 26-year-old Cockney, who once served with the American Marines, now has a 31-8 record. Moyer, 24, is 30-7-1.

Down Clemson way they wave the Confederate flag with a vigor befitting the Old South. But the press box during the game, which Clemson took from North Carolina, 17-6, the talk favored the Yanks.

"Me," said Whitey, "I'm a Giant fan. I mean the New York football Giants."

Ford is famous for his pickoffs. He seemed content to watch kickoffs.

Louisville Quits Football League

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (AP) — The financially troubled Louisville Raiders of the United Football League called it quits Tuesday.

General Manager Duncan McCauley said preparations are being made for the Kentuckiana Professional Football Club, Inc., to file for bankruptcy.

The Raiders franchise recently was returned to the league. Commissioner George Gareff said it was too detrimental to the league to carry the Raiders any longer. The club lost 76-6 last Sunday to Indianapolis.

Terry Always Frowns On Intentional Walks

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

If you're still wondering why Ralph Terry pitched to Willie McCovey with first base open in the deciding World Series game, you don't know Ralph Terry.

The Yankee right hander just doesn't believe in the intentional walk, a baseball stratagem that led to the Los Angeles Dodgers loss to the San Francisco Giants in the deciding National League pennant playoff game.

Terry has given up only five intentional bases on balls in his three full seasons with the champion Yankees. That is practically nil when you consider that Terry walked 151 in 654 innings in the last three American League campaigns.

"I don't believe in the intentional walk," says Terry. "With first base open I would rather pitch carefully to the batter. If I walk the batter that means I have to be extra careful with the next man.

"Suppose, with the bases loaded I nick the next batter on the shirt? Then I have no place to put him. That forces in a run. Or if I get too careful I might throw two pitches that are called balls. Then I would have to come in there with a strike."

Gave Up 58 Walks

In 1961, Terry gave up 58 walks but not one was on purpose.

Last season, Terry walked only two men intentionally. On Aug. 11 against Detroit, he walked catcher Dick Brown to get at pitcher Hank Aguirre. It was in the fourth inning with New York losing, 3-1. The Yankees lost the game 7-2.

On Sept. 22, in Chicago, Terry walked Luis Aparicio on purpose to pitch to Camilo Carreon in the eighth inning. Carreon singled and Terry was removed. The Yankees lost 6-2.

There was a game in Boston last summer in which Terry pitched a 1-0 shutout against the Red Sox. In the bottom of the ninth inning, Carl Yastrzemski led off with a three-base hit off the left center field wall.

Rather than put the winning run on base, Terry took his chances against a sacrifice fly. He got Frank Malzone and league batting champion Pete Runnels out via the infield. He then retired Lou Clinton on an infield out to end the game.

In the World Series, Terry knew he could walk McCovey with Matty Alou on third and Willie Mays on second with the winning run.

"I had to pitch to McCovey or Orlando Cepeda," says Terry. "I wanted to pitch to McCovey. I good to right at Bobby Richardpitched to win. He hit the ball son. I'm glad it turned out that way. But if McCovey hits the ball a few inches either way he's the hero and I'm a bum."

Most managers prefer to walk a man with a needless run when first base is open. But that's how the Dodgers lost the playoff to the Giants. Stan Williams walked Ed Bailey on purpose to fill the bases with the score tied 4-4. Then he lost control and walked Jim Davenport to force home what proved to be the deciding run and the pennant.

Terry wasn't aware of the intentional walk backfiring against the Dodgers. But when it was brought to his attention soon after the series, the Dodgers demise fell right in line with his thinking that the intentional walk can backfire.

RALPH TERRY
Goes Against the Book

Best Since 1928

During the 1962 season, Terry gave up 40 home runs, but he also won 23 games, best figure for a Yankee right hander since 1928 when George Pipgras won 24 and Waite Hoyt took 23. The home run didn't hurt Terry. Most of them came with nobody on base. His pinpoint control helped, too. He never walks many.

Manager Ralph Houk knew this. Some say Terry's fine control is all the more reason why Houk should have ordered McCovey walked. But Houk had faith in his pitcher, for which Terry is thankful. Furthermore, you can't second guess success.

RAIDER

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—A sports writer in Texas once called Oklahoma football coach Bud Wilkinson "the greatest border raider since Pancho Villa" for Wilkinson's recruiting success in luring West Texas players to OU.

A check of the Oklahoma roster this year indicates there is still a basis for the tag—the Sooners have 71 names listed, 37 from Oklahoma and 24 from Texas. The Sooners' bitter Texas rival, the University of Texas, lists 73 players this year, with only two from out of Texas.

LONDON (AP)—Terry Downes, British middleweight champion, defeated Phil Moyer of Portland, Ore., on a technical knockout in the ninth round Tuesday night.

Referee Jack Hart stopped the fight after 30 seconds of the ninth round of the scheduled 10-rounder when blood flowed from a cut over Moyer's right eye—an injury he suffered in the seventh round.

Downes weighed 164¾, Moyer 165.

A sellout crowd of 14,000 at London's Wembley Indoor Stadium paid an estimated $70,000 to watch the fight. Downes was reported receiving $20,000 and Moyer $12,000.

Downes, a 26-year-old Cockney, who once served with the American Marines, now has a 31-8 record. Moyer, 24, is 30-7-1.

Pickoffs To Kickoffs

Down Clemson way they wave the Confederate flag with a vigor befitting the Old South. But the press box during the game, which Clemson took from North Carolina, 17-6, the talk favored the Yanks.

Whitey Ford, who toils on the mound for the World Champion New York Yankees, was a special guest. He was witnessing his first collegiate football game.

"Me," said Whitey, "I'm a Giant fan. I mean the New York football Giants."

Ford is famous for his pickoffs. He seemed content to watch kickoffs.

Louisville Quits Football League

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (AP) — The financially troubled Louisville Raiders of the United Football League called it quits Tuesday.

General Manager Duncan McCauley said preparations are being made for the Kentuckiana Professional Football Club, Inc., to file for bankruptcy.

The Raiders franchise recently was returned to the league. Commissioner George Gareff said it was too detrimental to the league to carry the Raiders any longer. The club lost 76-6 last Sunday to Indianapolis.

Terry Always Frowns On Intentional Walks

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

If you're still wondering why Ralph Terry pitched to Willie McCovey with first base open in the deciding World Series game, you don't know Ralph Terry.

The Yankee right hander just doesn't believe in the intentional walk, a baseball stratagem that led to the Los Angeles Dodgers loss to the San Francisco Giants in the deciding National League pennant playoff game.

Terry has given up only five intentional bases on balls in his three full seasons with the champion Yankees. That is practically nil when you consider that Terry walked 151 in 654 innings in the last three American League campaigns.

"I don't believe in the intentional walk," says Terry. "With first base open I would rather pitch carefully to the batter. If I walk the batter that means I have to be extra careful with the next man.

"Suppose, with the bases loaded I nick the next batter on the shirt? Then I have no place to put him. That forces in a run. Or if I get too careful I might throw two pitches that are called balls. Then I would have to come in there with a strike."

Gave Up 58 Walks

In 1961, Terry gave up 58 walks but not one was on purpose.

Last season, Terry walked only two men intentionally. On Aug. 11 against Detroit, he walked catcher Dick Brown to get at pitcher Hank Aguirre. It was in the fourth inning with New York losing, 3-1. The Yankees lost the game 7-2.

On Sept. 22, in Chicago, Terry walked Luis Aparicio on purpose to pitch to Camilo Carreon in the eighth inning. Carreon singled and Terry was removed. The Yankees lost 6-2.

There was a game in Boston last summer in which Terry pitched a 1-0 shutout against the Red Sox. In the bottom of the ninth inning, Carl Yastrzemski led off with a three-base hit off the left center field wall.

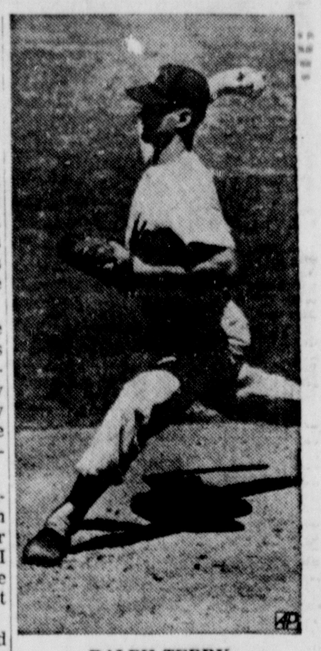
Rather than put the winning run on base, Terry took his chances against a sacrifice fly. He got Frank Malzone and league batting champion Pete Runnels out via the infield. He then retired Lou Clinton on an infield out to end the game.

In the World Series, Terry knew he could walk McCovey with Matty Alou on third and Willie Mays on second with the winning run.

"I had to pitch to McCovey or Orlando Cepeda," says Terry. "I wanted to pitch to McCovey. I good to right at Bobby Richardpitched to win. He hit the ball son. I'm glad it turned out that way. But if McCovey hits the ball a few inches either way he's the hero and I'm a bum."

Most managers prefer to walk a man with a needless run when first base is open. But that's how the Dodgers lost the playoff to the Giants. Stan Williams walked Ed Bailey on purpose to fill the bases with the score tied 4-4. Then he lost control and walked Jim Davenport to force home what proved to be the deciding run and the pennant.

Terry wasn't aware of the intentional walk backfiring against the Dodgers. But when it was brought to his attention soon after the series, the Dodgers demise fell right in line with his thinking that the intentional walk can backfire.



RALPH TERRY
Goes Against the Book

Best Since 1928

During the 1962 season, Terry gave up 40 home runs, but he also won 23 games, best figure for a Yankee right hander since 1928 when George Pipgras won 24 and Waite Hoyt took 23. The home run didn't hurt Terry. Most of them came with nobody on base. His pinpoint control helped, too. He never walks many.

Manager Ralph Houk knew this. Some say Terry's fine control is all the more reason why Houk should have ordered McCovey walked. But Houk had faith in his pitcher, for which Terry is thankful. Furthermore, you can't second guess success.

RAIDER

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—A sports writer in Texas once called Oklahoma football coach Bud Wilkinson "the greatest border raider since Pancho Villa" for Wilkinson's recruiting success in luring West Texas players to OU.

A check of the Oklahoma roster this year indicates there is still a basis for the tag—the Sooners have 71 names listed, 37 from Oklahoma and 24 from Texas. The Sooners' bitter Texas rival, the University of Texas, lists 73 players this year, with only two from out of Texas.

After dinner—a V.O. demi

We call your attention to a bright new idea in after-dinner drinks.

The V.O. demi.

A pony of the world's finest whisky. Brief but brilliant.

Hold it to the light—note the clarity? Inhale the bouquet—remarkable!

And now, sip it neat. Your taste will tell you that here is a rare combination in the art of distilling: a light-bodied whisky that has brilliance of flavor. A whisky that's completely pleasing from the very first sip.

Everyone would like to make such a whisky. Only Seagram does.

STEVE BROOKS

Steve Brooks Is Elected To Hall Of Fame

Veteran Of 25 Years Beats Out Hartack

BALTIMORE (AP) — Steve Brooks, 41, the nation's leading money-winning and stakes-winning rider in 1949, was elected to the National Jockeys Hall of Fame Tuesday.

Winner of more than 3,900 races, Brooks was chosen by a two-vote margin over Will Hartack in the balloting by race writers and turf authorities. Next, in order, came Charles Kurtsinger, Lavelle (Buddy) Ensor and Clarence Kummer, all deceased.

Brooks will be enshrined in the Hall of Fame at Pimlico Nov. 24 in a ceremony which will be part of the Maryland racing writers' annual ball. A portrait showing him in the silks of Calumet Farm will be unveiled.

Brooks, a veteran of 25 years as a jockey, received the George Woolf Memorial Award in February, shortly before he ran his winning total past 3,976 to rank fourth among the all-time leading riders.

Closely identified with the Calumet Farm stable over the years, Brooks was riding Citation when Citation became a million-dollar winner by taking the 1951 Hollywood Gold Cup.

Pimlico Opens Meeting Today

Old Hilltop Season Will Last 28 Days

BALTIMORE (AP) — Historic Pimlico, which usually has the fall horse racing season to itself, has some competition this time as it opens a 28-day meeting Wednesday.

Garden State Park in New Jersey will be in competition through Dec. 5 and this could keep away some of the bigger stables seen here in the past.

For Maryland racing fans, Tuesday was the only lull between the closing of Laurel with the Washington, D. C., International and the opening of Pimlico.

The richest race at Old Hilltop will be the Pimlico Futurity for 2-year-olds Nov. 24 at a mile and a sixteenth. The race, which in past years has helped decide the juvenile championship, has an estimated gross of $150,000.

The purse has been boosted to $50,000 for the Dixie Handicap, a mile and a half on turf set for Thanksgiving Day.

West Virginia Class AA Playoff Game Set Nov. 24

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) — Executive Secretary W. Gordon Eismon of the Secondary Schools Activities Commission said Tuesday that the West Virginia Double-A football playoff has been reset for Nov. 24 in Weston.

The game was originally scheduled for this coming Saturday. However, Keyser, in third place in the ratings, has two defeated opponents playing on Thanksgiving Day and it could move into second place and a playoff berth if one of the teams win.

Summersville is in the top spot and Bridgeport presently is second. Eismon said if the weather interfers with the Nov. 24 date an attempt will be made to reschedule the game Dec. 1.

Race Official Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Cyrus S. Jullien, 79, attorney and president of the Finger Lakes Racing Association, which operates a track at Canandaigua, N.Y., died at his home Tuesday after a long illness.

Redskins' Owner Pays Off $100 Bet To AFL President

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Marshall, Washington Redskin owner and staunch National Football League partisan, paid off a $100 bet Monday to Lamar Hunt, president of the American Football League.

"I bet Lamar Hunt when he started his league three years ago that he would never draw more than 10,000 in Denver," Marshall said.

"I knew I was safe then, because the ball park Denver was playing in wouldn't hold 10,000. But he wrote me a letter last week that Denver drew 31,000 or 32,000."

As he signed the letter to go with the $100 check, Marshall added: "They moved their games from the ball park to the University of Denver stadium."

Los Angeles State Grid Coach Resigns

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leonard (Bud) Adams has resigned as head football coach at Los Angeles State College. But he won't quit until after the Diablos' final game of the season Thanksgiving Day.

Adams' quarterback, Dean Bond, quit earlier, and on shorter notice. He quit the team at halftime during Saturday's game against Long Beach State. Long Beach won the game, 23-22.

Adams and Bond had been feuding for some time. Bond quit when the coach benched him for calling a play his way instead of Adams' way.

The reason for Adams' resignation wasn't given when the announcement was made Monday.

Adams is in his 12th year at Los Angeles State. His teams have won 41 games, lost 54 and tied 5.

The two best pitchers on the Mets team this year were Roger Craig and Al Jackson. And they lost 44 games between them!

Thursday Deadline Set For Teams To Enter Rec Loops

The deadline for teams to enter the City Recreation Department's operated basketball leagues, both the High School and the Men's Leagues, will be at a meeting Thursday at 8 p. m. in the City Hall. It is the league's second meeting and the High School representatives will meet at 7 while the Men's League will meet at 8.

It is important that all teams be represented at the meeting as the number of teams will be limited this year in order to have each team normally play two games each week.

The Leagues are expected to operate similar to last season as the by-laws were discussed last week and only a few minor changes were suggested by the representatives. They were: a trophy for the regular season champion; the eligibility of players in other leagues and the limit of former City-County League players.

This will be a very important meeting for all representatives as the agenda consists of: paying of entry fees; passing out of the player contracts and team rosters; assigning of a practice session and discussion and approval of the by-laws by the teams.

Practice sessions will be assigned for the week of November 26th and regular season play will begin on December 3rd.

Mangrum Improved

APPLE VALLEY, Calif. (UPI)—Golfer Lloyd Mangrum, stricken Monday by his second heart attack in four months, was reported showing improvement on Tuesday although his general condition remained serious.

"Considering he has had a serious attack, he is doing well," a spokesman said. Mangrum, 48, former U.S. Open winner, suffered an acute coronary thrombosis and was placed under sedation.

STEVE BROOKS

Steve Brooks Is Elected To Hall Of Fame

Veteran Of 25 Years Beats Out Hartack

BALTIMORE (AP) — Steve Brooks, 41, the nation's leading money-winning and stakes-winning rider in 1949, was elected to the National Jockeys Hall of Fame Tuesday.

Winner of more than 3,900 races, Brooks was chosen by a two-vote margin over Will Hartack in the balloting by race writers and turf authorities. Next, in order, came Charles Kurtsinger, Lavelle (Buddy) Ensor and Clarence Kummer, all deceased.

Brooks will be enshrined in the Hall of Fame at Pimlico Nov. 24 in a ceremony which will be part of the Maryland racing writers' annual ball. A portrait showing him in the silks of Calumet Farm will be unveiled.

Brooks, a veteran of 25 years as a jockey, received the George Woolf Memorial Award in February, shortly before he ran his winning total past 3,976 to rank fourth among the all-time leading riders.

Closely identified with the Calumet Farm stable over the years, Brooks was riding Citation when Citation became a million-dollar winner by taking the 1951 Hollywood Gold Cup.

Pimlico Opens Meeting Today

Old Hilltop Season Will Last 28 Days

BALTIMORE (AP) — Historic Pimlico, which usually has the fall horse racing season to itself, has some competition this time as it opens a 28-day meeting Wednesday.

Garden State Park in New Jersey will be in competition through Dec. 5 and this could keep away some of the bigger stables seen here in the past.

For Maryland racing fans, Tuesday was the only lull between the closing of Laurel with the Washington, D. C., International and the opening of Pimlico.

The richest race at Old Hilltop will be the Pimlico Futurity for 2-year-olds Nov. 24 at a mile and a sixteenth. The race, which in past years has helped decide the juvenile championship, has an estimated gross of $150,000.

The purse has been boosted to $50,000 for the Dixie Handicap, a mile and a half on turf set for Thanksgiving Day.

West Virginia Class AA Playoff Game Set Nov. 24

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) — Executive Secretary W. Gordon Eismon of the Secondary Schools Activities Commission said Tuesday that the West Virginia Double-A football playoff has been reset for Nov. 24 in Weston.

The game was originally scheduled for this coming Saturday. However, Keyser, in third place in the ratings, has two defeated opponents playing on Thanksgiving Day and it could move into second place and a playoff berth if one of the teams win.

Summersville is in the top spot and Bridgeport presently is second. Eismon said if the weather interfers with the Nov. 24 date an attempt will be made to reschedule the game Dec. 1.

Race Official Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Cyrus S. Jullien, 79, attorney and president of the Finger Lakes Racing Association, which operates a track at Canandaigua, N.Y., died at his home Tuesday after a long illness.

Redskins' Owner Pays Off $100 Bet To AFL President

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Marshall, Washington Redskin owner and staunch National Football League partisan, paid off a $100 bet Monday to Lamar Hunt, president of the American Football League.

"I bet Lamar Hunt when he started his league three years ago that he would never draw more than 10,000 in Denver," Marshall said.

"I knew I was safe then, because the ball park Denver was playing in wouldn't hold 10,000. But he wrote me a letter last week that Denver drew 31,000 or 32,000."

As he signed the letter to go with the $100 check, Marshall added: "They moved their games from the ball park to the University of Denver stadium."

Los Angeles State Grid Coach Resigns

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leonard (Bud) Adams has resigned as head football coach at Los Angeles State College. But he won't quit until after the Diablos' final game of the season Thanksgiving Day.

Adams' quarterback, Dean Bond, quit earlier, and on shorter notice. He quit the team at halftime during Saturday's game against Long Beach State. Long Beach won the game, 23-22.

Adams and Bond had been feuding for some time. Bond quit when the coach benched him for calling a play his way instead of Adams' way.

The reason for Adams' resignation wasn't given when the announcement was made Monday.

Adams is in his 12th year at Los Angeles State. His teams have won 41 games, lost 54 and tied 5.

The two best pitchers on the Mets team this year were Roger Craig and Al Jackson. And they lost 44 games between them!

Thursday Deadline Set For Teams To Enter Rec Loops

The deadline for teams to enter the City Recreation Department's operated basketball leagues, both the High School and the Men's Leagues, will be at a meeting Thursday at 8 p. m. in the City Hall. It is the league's second meeting and the High School representatives will meet at 7 while the Men's League will meet at 8.

It is important that all teams be represented at the meeting as the number of teams will be limited this year in order to have each team normally play two games each week.

The Leagues are expected to operate similar to last season as the by-laws were discussed last week and only a few minor changes were suggested by the representatives. They were: a trophy for the regular season champion; the eligibility of players in other leagues and the limit of former City-County League players.

This will be a very important meeting for all representatives as the agenda consists of: paying of entry fees; passing out of the player contracts and team rosters; assigning of a practice session and discussion and approval of the by-laws by the teams.

Practice sessions will be assigned for the week of November 26th and regular season play will begin on December 3rd.

Mangrum Improved

APPLE VALLEY, Calif. (UPI)—Golfer Lloyd Mangrum, stricken on Monday by his second heart attack in four months, was reported showing improvement on Tuesday although his general condition remained serious.

"Considering he has had a serious attack, he is doing well," a spokesman said. Mangrum, 48, former U.S. Open winner, suffered an acute coronary thrombosis and was placed under sedation.

Self-Help Course Starts Today At LaVale Fire Hall

A medical self-help course of knowledge for the family following nuclear attack will be sponsored on four consecutive Wednesdays at the LaVale Volunteer Fire Hall.

The sponsors of this course urge one member of each family to attend as their welfare and the community may depend on the information presented at each meeting.

The first session will be held at 7:30 p. m. today with druggists presenting the three lessons.

Speaking will be William Sullivan, Harry Eisentrout and Robert Martin, all pharmacists.

On Wednesday, November 21, the program will be presented by Mrs. Coleen Lapp and Mrs. Dorothy Emerson, both nurses.

The following Wednesday, November 28, the course on self-help during and following nuclear attack will be given by three volunteer firemen headed by Waverly Rice of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company.

The fourth course will be presented by two nurses and two doctors.

The sponsors of the four lessons are the LaVale Volunteer Fire Department; Allegany - Garrett Pharmaceutical Society, Maryland Chirurgical Society, Allegany County Civil Defense and Allegany County Health Department.

Speaker Calls For Change In Aging Concepts

48 Attend Regional Meet

A complete revolution in the concept of treatment and facilities for aged citizens is necessary if anything is to be done for them at all, Dr. Mason F. Lord told 48 visitors to the first Western Maryland Regional Fall Assembly yesterday at Shrine Country Club.

Dr. Lord, medical coordinator for chronic diseases for Baltimore City Hospitals, said the basic problem is the invisible wall between the general community and the hospital community, and that new nursing homes are a small but vital segment of the problems facing state Commissions on Problems of the Aging.

He said general hospitals provide custodial rather than remedial care for aged patients, and appropriate discharge planning is needed in order to bring down waiting lists, especially for those with chronic diseases. Most aged patients receive maximum hospital benefit in six weeks to three months. After that they could be removed to foster adult care homes, or selected nursing homes, providing bed space needed for really ill persons.

The concept of nursing homes must change, according to Dr. Lord, who cited the Halfway House principle used in England. These are not nursing homes as such, but places for patients who have received maximum hospital benefit to spend a relatively short period for active emotional rehabilitation before returning to active community life.

5,000 In Mental Hospitals

Citing that 5,000 persons are in state mental hospitals because they are senile and appropriate facilities are not available, Dr. Lord, said he believes the Halfway House idea is the answer. Senility is treatable and preventable, he added. Communities must forget the "nursing home" concept and provide rehabilitation places for the patient to become stabilized emotionally and socially.

He stressed that the homes should be in central locations, not in rural areas, where they are convenient for the patient and families. They should also be associated formally or informally with the local hospitals for physical and occupational therapy. A certain percentage of custodial, "end-of-the-road" patients, should be the exception rather than the rule.

A team of five is needed for coordination of facilities, he said. This would include the doctor, public health nurse, social worker, physical and occupational therapists.

Dr. Lord praised the County Home and Infirmary and suggested that the facilities eventually be established as a Halfway House. Nursing homes could be re-established or planned as housing projects or other facilities for aged citizens.

A coordinated plan for better treatment of an facilities for the aged would include, according to Dr. Lord, in order, general hospital, chronic disease hospital or halfway house, nursing program and workshop or senior center, whichever is available.

This is part of the new concept which will enable patients to get better in order to get back into community life, retain the patient's dignity and alleviate his fear of institutions, and contribute to better relationship between the aged and his family.

The representatives from Garrett, Washington and Allegany counties were welcomed by Earl Grim, Gerald Monsman, executive director of the State Commission on the Aging, introduced Dr. Lord.

Panel Discusses Homes

A panel discussion on nursing homes was conducted by Dan Newman, Garrett County; Rev. Arthur Scrogum, Washington County; and Rabbi Max Selinger, Allegany County. Questions also were directed to Dr. Lord from the floor.

State Sen. Charles M. See and Winfield Adam, members of the Allegany County commission, spoke briefly at the luncheon session. Sen. See, who completes his term in January and will then be a member of the House of Delegates, pledged his support for any legislation that comes up concerning the aging problems.

Mrs. Mary Catherine Murray was guest speaker for the afternoon session. Mrs. Murray explained the planning, organization, and operation of a senior center at Charlottesville, Va.

Webster Cites School Closing In Emergencies

Memo Is Sent To Officials

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of public schools in Allegany County, has issued a memorandum in reference to the closing of schools in the event of snowfall or other threatening conditions.

In the memo to principals, teachers, supervisors and bus contractors and radio stations, Mr. Webster said, "An emergency closing will be announced only after weather forecasts or road conditions indicate this action to be in the best interest of all for reasons of safety until such announcement is made, it is to be assumed that school will operate as usual."

In the event of a Civil Defense emergency, all school personnel and students will be governed by plans and instructions set forth in the letter to schools and parents, "Civil Defense Plans for Allegany County Public Schools."

School officials authorized to make the emergency decision and announcement are Mr. Webster, Richard T. Rizer, assistant superintendent of schools; and J. Hubert Radcliffe, supervisor of transportation.

All radio stations are extremely cooperative in relaying information to the general public as soon as it is available to them, according to Mr. Webster, who said telephone calls to the broadcasting stations or to the school officials only tend to delay whatever announcement may be deemed advisable at the time.

Luke Workers Ratify New Labor Pact

Covington Local Votes Approval

Members of Luke Local 676, United Papermakers and Paperworkers, AFL-CIO, yesterday ratified a one-year contract with the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, according to Wilbur Johnson, president.

The contract covering some 1,900 hourly paid workers at the Luke mill was ratified at two well attended meetings held yesterday afternoon in the Welsh Theatre in Westernport.

It will become effective Saturday, November 17, and will remain in effect until November 17, 1963.

The new contract provides a five-cent-an-hour across-the-board wage increase, and wage adjustments ranging from two to 23 cents for workers in labor grades 2 and up.

Negotiations on the new contract were completed by the company and the union last Saturday in Washington.

Representing Luke Local 676 were Mr. Johnson, George Dick, first vice president; George Patterson, second vice president; William Murphy, third vice president, and Eldred Broadwater, secretary.

The Luke mill is one of three in the bargaining unit which comprises some 3,600 workers in the company's mills at Luke, Covington, Va., and Williamsburg, Pa.

Mr. Johnson was informed last night that the Covington local has ratified the pact and that the Williamsburg local was voting at meetings scheduled at 7:30 and 11 p. m. last night.

Cresap Drive Water Line Is Completed

Residents along Cresap Drive in Bowling Green can begin making connections Friday to a new water line laid by the City Water Department.

Water Department crews yesterday began chlorinating the four-inch cast iron main which runs some 2,040 feet along Cresap Drive.

After sterilization of the line is completed Thursday, the line will be washed out and then loaded up with city water for domestic use, according to Herbert Stallings, water superintendent.

As the line was laid, crews made 33 taps for customers, who must arrange for connections to lines serving their homes.

The line will replace an old two-inch line which was found to be full of leaks.

It was laid by the city at the residents' expense under an agreement reached with a committee representing the property owners.

Work began in mid-September and was delayed by several days of rain and by rock. Crews had to use air hammers to break up a 300-foot long ledge of rock before the chunks could be removed by a back hoe.

Employment Bill Offered To Committee

Delegate Dixon Urges Endorsement

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Judiciary Committee of the Legislative Council was urged Tuesday to endorse a fair employment bill proposed by Del. Irma G. Dixon, D-Balto 4th.

"We can't wait for education and persuasion to accomplish the aims of the bill," Del. Alexander Stark, D-Balto 5th, said. "It would take too many years.

"Most social progress is a result of legislation," Stark told legislators serving on council, the between-sessions arm of the General Assembly.

The bill, which Mrs. Dixon plans to introduce at the 1963 General Assembly, provides for a five-member commission to be appointed by the governor.

Under the proposed law, persons who contend they are aggrieved by a violation of its provisions would initiate action by filing a complaint in writing under oath. The commission also could issue its own complaint against alleged unlawful discriminatory practices.

Procedure Set Up

If a complaint appears to be well founded, the state agency would first attempt to settle the matter by conciliation. That failing, a formal hearing would decide whether to dismiss the complaint or to direct the violator to comply with the detailed order.

The agency's order could be reviewed by a state court.

Mrs. Dixon's bill provides that complaints be filed within 120 days of the alleged act of discrimination.

Provisions of the bill would not apply to exclusively social clubs, or to fraternal, charitable, education or religious associations or corporations organized for private profit. Employers with less than six persons in his employe also would be exempt.

Discrimination Cited

"We must see through this glass of discrimination in employment clearly," Mrs. Dixon said, "and recognize that denial of employment, solely on the basis of race, color, creed or national origin is detrimental to the general welfare, the health, progress and preservation of our state."

Woodrow F. Strong, president of the Maryland-District of Columbia AFL-CIO, said "labor is in the corner so far as erasing the problem is concerned." He said 10 per cent of the state work force is Negro, but Negroes make up 20 per cent of the unemployed.

"To meet the challenge of the '60s and thereafter," Strong said, "we must use all the manpower available."

Stark, one of 10 persons from labor, civic and racial groups, and government to testify in support of the proposed law, said it was "not designed purely to help the Negro population." He said other minorities groups suffered because of discrimination, although "Negroes are being hurt the most at present."

The suggested law is modeled closely after those used in other states and in Baltimore City for the past six years. There was general agreement that certain refinements would have to be made to avoid conflict with Baltimore's Equal Opportunities Commission, but no one viewed this as an obstacle.

Playgrounds Are Readied For Winter

Considerable maintenance work has been done on city-owned playgrounds during recent weeks as grounds are readied for the winter.

C. Eugene Mason, city recreation director, said most of the work has been done on Post, Mapleside, North End and Pine Avenue playgrounds.

On several grounds, equipment frames and basketball standards have been painted red and blue, the department's colors, to make the area more attractive.

Merry-go-rounds were relocated on several grounds to provide better use of available space next year.

At Post Playground, the storage building has been painted in a red and blue color scheme. The main building there was painted earlier this year by volunteer workers from the playground association, under the direction of Mrs. Victor Reynolds, president elect.

All of the grounds were cleaned up, and trees and bushes trimmed.

In an effort to curb vandalism sheets of metal were placed on the doors of several playground buildings before painting.

Water lines serving all of the play centers have been cut off and drained for the winter.

Mr. Mason said the fall maintenance work has been in charge of Carl Wolfe, the department's permanent maintenance man. He was assisted by three temporary laborers who began work in early summer.

Maintenance work during the winter is done by Mr. Wolfe, who will repair and paint playground equipment which has been stored at the city warehouse.

Man Charged In Forgery Of Checks

A former resident of the Romney area who posed as an exchange student from Oslo, Norway, on the Frostburg State Teachers College campus five years ago was questioned yesterday at the state's attorney's office in connection with the passing of several bad checks.

Robert L. Beeman, 32, who used the name of Marcus Von Falkenhurtz when he posed as an exchange student in 1957, indicated he would waive a preliminary hearing and request an immediate trial in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Sgt. William F. Baker, acting county investigator, questioned the man yesterday and obtained a statement. Beeman has been charged with forgery and larceny on four separate counts.

This past weekend he was returned to Allegany County from the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa. by Deputy Sheriff Edgar Lewis, who took the man into custody on a detainer issued by county authorities.

The bad checks were all passed in 1957 and included the following: Les Fair, Frostburg, $116.63 for the purchase of automobile tires, gasoline and other items; Fair's Atlantic Service Station, Frostburg, $29.35, cash; Gunter Hotel, Frostburg, $16.32, room rent, and Hohing's, Frostburg, $53.50.

Authorities said Beeman was never actually enrolled at the Frostburg College, however during his three-day visit to the Mountain City town he posed as an exchange student from Norway, and presented himself as such when he passed the checks.

He was apprehended on Thanksgiving Day, 1958, in Baltimore and charged with similar counts. He was sentenced to 10 years in the federal penitentiary and was released last week after serving four years of the sentence.

Board Examines First Plans For New School

Swimming Pool May Be Included

Preliminary plans for the proposed North Cumberland Junior High School were examined by members of the Allegany County Board of Education at their meeting yesterday afternoon at the Gephart Elementary School, which was enlarged and remodeled during the past summer.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster noted that the architect, Johannes and Murray of Silver Spring, had revised the plans to include an enclosed swimming pool at an estimated cost of $165,000. Mrs. Richard Winer, a member of the school board, had suggested the inclusion of the pool, which might be convertible so that it could be used in both summer and winter.

As proposed by the architect, the school for seventh and eighth graders in the area now served by Allegany High School would be constructed about where the tennis courts and basketball court now stand just off of Holland Street. A drive would be extended from Franklin Street to Holland Street in front of the school. The drive would be above Stitcher Field.

Replace Lost Areas

Mr. Webster reminded the board members that before the plans are completed arrangements would be made to replace any playground area lost because of the school construction.

The Board of County Commissioners has agreed to provide the necessary land for the school at the end of Franklin Street as the county garage will be moved from that sector to land donated by Celanese near Cresaptown.

Permission was granted by the Board of Education for use of the Fort Hill High School auditorium for three forthcoming entertainments. The Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce received permission to use the auditorium on the night of November 20 for two performances of the "Grand Ole Opry."

The Fort Hill Boosters Club was given permission to use the auditorium for a function on Friday, November 30. The Junior Woman's Civic Club got permission to present its third annual Red Stocking Review February 28, March 1 and 2.

Included in the meeting was a brief discussion of a proposed teacher salary schedule for the 1963-64 school year. Last winter, school board proposed a salary schedule for teachers starting at $4,400 in the first year and reaching a top of $6,500 with a bachelor's degree in the 12th year of experience.

Starts At $4,300

The Board of County Commissioners approved a schedule starting at $4,300 and reaching $6,400 in the 12th year, which in effect was granting $200 of the $300 increase sought at each experience level. The school board also had projected the schedule to include a 13th step at $6,700 in 1963-64, a 14th step at $6,900 in 1964-65 and a 15th step at $7,000 in 1965-66. No action was taken by the county commissioners last winter on these projections for future years.

No decision was reached on the salary question for next year.

Members of the Board of Education appeared in agreement that the first Business-Education Day on October 24 was a success. There was a school holiday that day and teachers and supervisors visited different typical industries and business establishments in the county.

Before the meeting ended, Miss Kathryn E. Laughlin, principal at Gephert, served the board members coffee and cookies and took them on a tour of the addition to the school on Frederick Street which is being used for the first time this year.

All five board members, J. Goodloe Jackson, president; Mrs. Winer, Kenneth R. Malcolm, T. Donald Shires and Mrs. George M. Young, were present as was Robert MacDonald Bruce, attorney to the board.

Sewage Plan Is Endorsed By UPIDC Directors

Directors of the Upper Potomac Industrial Development Company yesterday endorsed the program of the City-County Water-Sewage Commission.

The commission has recommended the appointment of an Allegany County Sewer Authority, armed with power and responsibility for handling the county's sewage and water from the Savage River Dam, and the appointment of a Citizens Advisory Commission to guide the authority in its program.

The UPIDC board also appointed John H. Mosner, president of the Second National Bank, to succeed the late Joseph M. Naughton on the board.

Speaker Calls For Change In Aging Concepts

48 Attend Regional Meet

A complete revolution in the concept of treatment and facilities for aged citizens is necessary if anything is to be done for them at all, Dr. Mason F. Lord told 48 visitors to the first Western Maryland Regional Fall Assembly yesterday at Shrine Country Club.

Dr. Lord, medical coordinator for chronic diseases for Baltimore City Hospitals, said the basic problem is the invisible wall between the general community and the hospital community, and that new nursing homes are a small but vital segment of the problems facing state Commissions on Problems of the Aging.

He said general hospitals provide custodial rather than remedial care for aged patients, and appropriate discharge planning is needed in order to bring down waiting lists, especially for those with chronic diseases. Most aged patients receive maximum hospital benefit in six weeks to three months. After that they could be removed to foster adult care homes, or selected nursing homes, providing bed space needed for really ill persons.

The concept of nursing homes must change, according to Dr. Lord, who cited the Halfway House principle used in England. These are not nursing homes as such, but places for patients who have received maximum hospital benefit to spend a relatively short period for active emotional rehabilitation before returning to active community life.

5,000 In Mental Hospitals

Citing that 5,000 persons are in state mental hospitals because they are senile and appropriate facilities are not available, Dr. Lord, said he believes the Halfway House idea is the answer. Senility is treatable and preventable, he added. Communities must forget the "nursing home" concept and provide rehabilitation places for the patient to become stabilized emotionally and socially.

He stressed that the homes should be in central locations, not in rural areas, where they are convenient for the patient and families. They should also be associated formally or informally with the local hospitals for physical and occupational therapy. A certain percentage of custodial, "end-of-the-road" patients, should be the exception rather than the rule.

A team of five is needed for coordination of facilities, he said. This would include the doctor, public health nurse, social worker, physical and occupational therapists.

Dr. Lord praised the County Home and Infirmary and suggested that the facilities eventually be established as a Halfway House. Nursing homes could be re-established or planned as housing projects or other facilities for aged citizens.

A coordinated plan for better treatment of an facilities for the aged would include, according to Dr. Lord, in order, general hospital, chronic disease hospital or halfway house, nursing program and workshop or senior center, whichever is available.

This is part of the new concept which will enable patients to get better in order to get back into community life, retain the patient's dignity and alleviate his fear of institutions, and contribute to better relationship between the aged and his family.

The representatives from Garrett, Washington and Allegany counties were welcomed by Earl Grim, Gerald Monsman, executive director of the State Commission on the Aging, introduced Dr. Lord.

Panel Discusses Homes

A panel discussion on nursing homes was conducted by Dan Newman, Garrett County; Rev. Arthur Scrogum, Washington County; and Rabbi Max Selinger, Allegany County. Questions also were directed to Dr. Lord from the floor.

State Sen. Charles M. See and Winfield Adam, members of the Allegany County commission, spoke briefly at the luncheon session. Sen. See, who completes his term in January and will then be a member of the House of Delegates, pledged his support for any legislation that comes up concerning the aging problems.

Mrs. Mary Catherine Murray was guest speaker for the afternoon session. Mrs. Murray explained the planning, organization, and operation of a senior center at Charlottesville, Va.

An illustrated talk on senior citizens activities in Allegany County by Mrs. Eva Hogan, assistant city recreation director, was followed by reports by representatives from each county, and a question-and-answer session.

Robert Peebles, chairman of the Allegany County commission, presided at the conference.

Webster Cites School Closing In Emergencies

Memo Is Sent To Officials

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of public schools in Allegany County, has issued a memorandum in reference to the closing of schools in the event of snowfall or other threatening conditions.

In the memo to principals, teachers, supervisors and bus contractors and radio stations, Mr. Webster said, "An emergency closing will be announced only after weather forecasts or road conditions indicate this action to be in the best interest of all for reasons of safety until such announcement is made, it is to be assumed that school will operate as usual."

In the event of a Civil Defense emergency, all school personnel and students will be governed by plans and instructions set forth in the letter to schools and parents, "Civil Defense Plans for Allegany County Public Schools."

School officials authorized to make the emergency decision and announcement are Mr. Webster, Richard T. Rizer, assistant superintendent of schools; and J. Hubert Radcliffe, supervisor of transportation.

All radio stations are extremely cooperative in relaying information to the general public as soon as it is available to them, according to Mr. Webster, who said telephone calls to the broadcasting stations or to the school officials only tend to delay whatever announcement may be deemed advisable at the time.

Safety Engineers Meet Tomorrow

The Western Maryland Safety Engineering Society will hear a talk by Milton Gerson on workmen's compensation at its November dinner meeting Thursday at 6:45 p. m. at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Luke Workers Ratify New Labor Pact

Covington Local Votes Approval

Members of Luke Local 676, United Papermakers and Paperworkers, AFL-CIO, yesterday ratified a one-year contract with the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, according to Wilbur Johnson, president.

The contract covering some 1,900 hourly paid workers at the Luke mill was ratified at two well attended meetings held yesterday afternoon in the Welsh Theatre in Westernport.

It will become effective Saturday, November 17, and will remain in effect until November 17, 1963.

The new contract provides a five-cent-an-hour across-the-board wage increase, and wage adjustments ranging from two to 23 cents for workers in labor grades 2 and up.

Negotiations on the new contract were completed by the company and the union last Saturday in Washington.

Representing Luke Local 676 were Mr. Johnson, George Dick, first vice president; George Patterson, second vice president; William Murphy, third vice president, and Eldred Broadwater, secretary.

The Luke mill is one of three in the bargaining unit which comprises some 3,600 workers in the company's mills at Luke, Covington, Va., and Williamsburg, Pa.

Mr. Johnson was informed last night that the Covington local has ratified the pact and that the Williamsburg local was voting at meetings scheduled at 7:30 and 11 p. m. last night.

Cresap Drive Water Line Is Completed

Residents along Cresap Drive in Bowling Green can begin making connections Friday to a new water line laid by the City Water Department.

Water Department crews yesterday began chlorinating the four-inch cast iron main which runs some 2,040 feet along Cresap Drive.

After sterilization of the line is completed Thursday, the line will be washed out and then loaded up with city water for domestic use, according to Herbert Stallings, water superintendent.

As the line was laid, crews made 33 taps for customers, who must arrange for connections to lines serving their homes.

The line will replace an old two-inch line which was found to be full of leaks.

It was laid by the city at the residents' expense under an agreement reached with a committee representing the property owners.

Work began in mid-September and was delayed by several days of rain and by rock. Crews had to use air hammers to break up a 300-foot long ledge of rock before the chunks could be removed by a back hoe.

Youth Leaders Honored

Bernie DeLisle, left, president of the Bowling Green-Potomac Park Optimist Club, presents the club's Youth Appreciation Week award to Michael Ruppenkamp, center, a LaSalle High School student. Looking on are Arthur Witt and Jim Cornelius, both of Allegany High, who tied for second place in the club's leadership competition.

Employment Bill Offered To Committee

Delegate Dixon Urges Endorsement

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Judiciary Committee of the Legislative Council was urged Tuesday to endorse a fair employment bill proposed by Del. Irma G. Dixon, D-Balto 4th.

"We can't wait for education and persuasion to accomplish the aims of the bill," Del. Alexander Stark, D-Balto 5th, said. "It would take too many years.

"Most social progress is a result of legislation," Stark told legislators serving on council, the between-sessions arm of the General Assembly.

The bill, which Mrs. Dixon plans to introduce at the 1963 General Assembly, provides for a five-member commission to be appointed by the governor.

Under the proposed law, persons who contend they are aggrieved by a violation of its provisions would initiate action by filing a complaint in writing under oath. The commission also could issue its own complaint against alleged unlawful discriminatory practices.

Procedure Set Up

If a complaint appears to be well founded, the state agency would first attempt to settle the matter by conciliation. That failing, a formal hearing would decide whether to dismiss the complaint or to direct the violator to comply with the detailed order.

The agency's order could be reviewed by a state court.

Mrs. Dixon's bill provides that complaints be filed within 120 days of the alleged act of discrimination.

Provisions of the bill would not apply to exclusively social clubs, or to fraternal, charitable, education or religious associations or corporations organized for private profit. Employers with less than six persons in his employe also would be exempt.

Discrimination Cited

"We must see through this glass of discrimination in employment clearly," Mrs. Dixon said, "and recognize that denial of employment, solely on the basis of race, color, creed or national origin is detrimental to the general welfare, the health, progress and preservation of our state."

Woodrow F. Strong, president of the Maryland-District of Columbia AFL-CIO, said "labor is in the corner so far as erasing the problem is concerned." He said 10 per cent of the state work force is Negro, but Negroes make up 20 per cent of the unemployed.

"To meet the challenge of the '60s and thereafter," Strong said, "we must use all the manpower available."

Stark, one of 10 persons from labor, civic and racial groups, and government to testify in support of the proposed law, said it was "not designed purely to help the Negro population." He said other minorities groups suffered because of discrimination, although "Negroes are being hurt the most at present."

The suggested law is modeled closely after those used in other states and in Baltimore City for the past six years. There was general agreement that certain refinements would have to be made to avoid conflict with Baltimore's Equal Opportunities Commission, but no one viewed this as an obstacle.

Playgrounds Are Readied For Winter

Considerable maintenance work has been done on city-owned playgrounds during recent weeks as grounds are readied for the winter.

C. Eugene Mason, city recreation director, said most of the work has been done on Post, Mapleside, North End and Pine Avenue playgrounds.

On several grounds, equipment frames and basketball standards have been painted red and blue, the department's colors, to make the area more attractive.

Merry-go-rounds were relocated on several grounds to provide better use of available space next year.

At Post Playground, the storage building has been painted in a red and blue color scheme. The main building there was painted earlier this year by volunteer workers from the playground association, under the direction of Mrs. Victor Reynolds, president elect.

All of the grounds were cleaned up, and trees and bushes trimmed.

In an effort to curb vandalism sheets of metal were placed on the doors of several playground buildings before painting.

Water lines serving all of the play centers have been cut off and drained for the winter.

Mr. Mason said the fall maintenance work has been in charge of Carl Wolfe, the department's permanent maintenance man. He was assisted by three temporary laborers who began work in early summer.

Maintenance work during the winter is done by Mr. Wolfe, who will repair and paint playground equipment which has been stored at the city warehouse.

Man Charged In Forgery Of Checks

A former resident of the Romney area who posed as an exchange student from Oslo, Norway, on the Frostburg State Teachers College campus five years ago was questioned yesterday at the state's attorney's office in connection with the passing of several bad checks.

Robert L. Beeman, 32, who used the name of Marcus Von Falkenhurtz when he posed as an exchange student in 1957, indicated he would waive a preliminary hearing and request an immediate trial in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Sgt. William F. Baker, acting county investigator, questioned the man yesterday and obtained a statement. Beeman has been charged with forgery and larceny on four separate counts.

This past weekend he was returned to Allegany County from the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa. by Deputy Sheriff Edgar Lewis, who took the man into custody on a detainer issued by county authorities.

The bad checks were all passed in 1957 and included the following: Les Fair, Frostburg, $116.63 for the purchase of automobile tires, gasoline and other items; Fair's Atlantic Service Station, Frostburg, $29.35, cash; Gunter Hotel, Frostburg, $16.32, room rent, and Hohing's, Frostburg, $53.50.

Authorities said Beeman was never actually enrolled at the Frostburg College, however during his three-day visit to the Mountain City town he posed as an exchange student from Norway, and presented himself as such when he passed the checks.

He was apprehended on Thanksgiving Day, 1958, in Baltimore and charged with similar counts. He was sentenced to 10 years in the federal penitentiary and was released last week after serving four years of the sentence.
